National Night Out Set for August 1

Road Construction Not Stopping the Block Party in Downtown Harrisburg!

By Virginia Olson

The best way to build a safer community is to know your neighbors and your surroundings.

Billed as "America's Night Out Against Crime," National Night Out (NNO) is a community-police awareness event celebrated every year on the first Tuesday in August, this year on August 1.

Again this year, Harrisburg will be throwing its own NNO block party in downtown Harrisburg and will be one of more than twenty South Dakota communities participating. The festivities will run from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.

NNO is national event and was established 40 years ago to promote community partnerships and neighborhood comradery for the purpose of making neighborhoods safer explained Larry Klipfel, Harrisburg Community Program Director.

"The event has become a way to promote community and police programs and initiatives right here in our town in order to improve safety and to take a stand against crime."

Klipfel praised the Harrisburg Park and Rec Department for organizing the event again this year.

"We will close off the downtown street at Hugh Robinson Park and will have a real block party that will include food trucks, inflatables, face painting and games. Also a big part of this event will be the Disaster emergency team, the fire engines and police vehicles."

FirstNet, AT&T and SD public safety all come together

Fire trucks and police vehicles as well as the fire fighters, police and first responders will take center stage in downtown Harrisburg as will FirstNet, the telecommunications company that is the backbone of the emergency response network in South Dakota.

"FirstNet is the nationwide sponsor of NNO so having them in attendance is huge," said Klipfel.

AT&T, who also has had a long history of supporting first responders and local communities will also have representatives on hand to educate the public on FirstNet as FirstNet is powered by AT&T.

FirstNet allows emergency personnel to share videos, text and send photos and other essential information during incidents in near real time and uses local services to help with mapping capabilities during rescues and evacuations, whether it is a flood, tornado, wildfires or other disasters. Since its introduction, FirstNet has expanded across South Dakota including Harrisburg and Sioux Falls to advance public safety communications.

Bringing all the various emergency agencies and first responders together is a good thing for emergency management, says Harold Timmerman, Coordinator of Lincoln County Emergency Management.

"The goal of NNO is to give the public a chance visit with our first responders about each agency's capabilities and resources outside of an emergency situation," said Timmerman. "It's always good to visit and connect with each other and each agency for a better understanding of how to respond when needed."

POLICE - COMMUNITY PARTNERSHIPS

Tommy the Turtle returns

Also included in NNO festivities this year is Tommy the Turtle, the mascot for the South Dakota Public Safety Office of Emergency Management. Tommy the Turtle is the main character in the child disaster preparedness books from the State.

Creating Unity

"Our first NNO in Harrisburg began in 2016," said Klipfel. "We had about 75 people attending. The event has continued to grow. Last year, crowd size topped over 1000."

For Klipfel, it is all about getting the community out for a night and coming together.

"Getting to know these first responders and law enforcement can go a long way in creating mutual respect. Law enforcement agencies around the country have been highly scrutinized over the last several years. Events like NNO are necessary and important to build stronger relationships within the community."

Mayor Derick Wenck looks forward to his town's NNO and believes to make the event a success depends on the community coming out.

"NNO has become a way to get to know the local police and fire department along with plenty of food and fellowship. It really gives citizens a chance to get together and meet people."

South Dakota Dreams: A "Freedom Works Here" Story

By: Governor Kristi Noem
July 21, 2023

Alex moved to the United States from South Africa in 1995. He had lived in Seattle ever since – until the COVID pandemic and violent riots changed the city. In 2021, Alex decided that he'd had enough of the soaring cost of living and diminishing quality of life on the West Coast. He packed his bags, moved to South Dakota, and never looked back. And Alex says that moving to the Mount Rushmore State is one of the greatest decisions he's ever made.

"I decided to go to South Dakota because I wanted to improve my situation and my life," Alex said. "Moving to South Dakota was one of the best decisions of my life. And I can honestly say there isn't a day that goes by where I don't think about how thankful I am to be in South Dakota."

Today, Alex is a dedicated job advisor with the South Dakota Department of Labor & Regulation. And with our new "Freedom Works Here" nationwide workforce recruitment campaign, he's busier than ever.

Even with the lowest unemployment rate in the history of the nation, South Dakota still has open jobs to spare. We have more jobs than people! So we're inviting Freedom-loving people from across America to come join our winning workforce.

More than 3,000 people have applied to find jobs in South Dakota – that's when folks like Alex step in. As a job advisor, Alex works to connect individuals interested in moving to our state with our businesses that are in need of workers. His personal journey and firsthand experience in transitioning to a new state allow him to empathize with his clients on a profound level. For that reason, Alex is working directly with folks moving from the West Coast!

"Freedom Works Here" has already been the most successful workforce recruitment campaign in South Dakota history. The number one state for applications is California. Americans are seeing the pitfalls of far-left policies. People don't want to live in packed communities with skyrocketing prices and politicians that don't seem to care for their wellbeing.

For so many of these folks,

South Dakota is a beacon of hope and Freedom. Our vast lands, our thriving economy, and our patriotism set us apart. These folks really are making a statement. It's not easy to pick up your entire life and move your family across the country, but that's exactly what these people are doing.

We have hundreds of applicants that are already working with people like Alex. Over 550 are in the final stages of finding career opportunities to move to South Dakota. And people like Alex who have actually packed up their lives and moved here are the one that really connect with Americans from coast to coast.

Alex firmly believes that everyone deserves a chance to thrive professionally. He is committed to empowering others to achieve their dreams in South Dakota. And there are people like Alex all over our great state. People have seen that our small-town values and rural way of life work.

Freedom Works Here – and now, Americans from across the nation are working here too.

Writers and Writing

By Michael Tidemann

The Swine Republic

Chris Jones, research engineer with IHR-Hydrosience & Engineering at the University of Iowa, has confronted the impact of Iowa large-scale agriculture on the environment head-on in his book, The Swine Republic. The book is a compilation from a blog he has published over the past several years.

An Iowa native, Jones holds a PhD in analytical chemistry from Montana State University and worked previously at the Des Moines Water Works and the Iowa Soybean Association.

There is really no sacred cow in agriculture, or perhaps more appropriately pig, that Jones leaves unscathed.

Jones takes to task overapplication of both commercial fertilizer and manure, tiling, lack of buffer strips along waterways, fall tillage and applying manure on snow or frozen ground, all practices he says have loaded Iowa's waterways with nitrogen and phosphorous, ultimately contributing to the Gulf of Mexico Dead Zone. He says the manure generated by hogs, dairy and beef cattle, laying chickens and turkeys is equal to that of 134 million people.

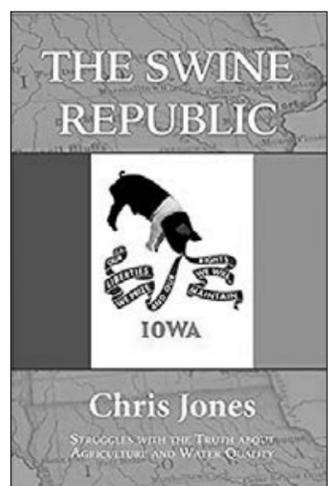

Jones also says the pursuit of higher yields, whatever the cost, has resulted in dire damage to the environment.

"... farmers operate within a more bushels/lower price spiral. We've rewarded their productivity increases with less money per bushel, just like wage earners in our society."

Jones also tasks Iowa's master matrix for animal confinement evaluation, saying it does little if anything to protect the environment.

He also cites a study that concludes, "in fact corn ethanol may be worse than gasoline when the inputs and land use change needed to grow corn are considered."

Jones recommends the following approaches to cleaner water:

Make farmers apply ISU (Iowa State University)-recommended amounts of nitrogen.

Quit farming in the two-year floodplain, and buffer perennial streams.

Ban fall tillage.
Ban application of manure to snow and frozen ground.

Rework the master matrix rules such that DNR (Department of Natural Resources) can effectively enforce them and require N (nitrogen) and P (phosphorous) application at recommended rates commensurate with ISU guidelines in the N rate calculator.

Jones also says the existing system of corn, soybeans and confined animal feeding operations should be regulated, Iowa farms should be diversified and fuel ethanol should be eliminated.

Undoubtedly, Jones' recommendations are thought-provoking, if not argument-provoking. They're at least worthy of discussion, until a solution can be found.

MEMORY LANE

It was a hot and windy Friday afternoon, but that didn't affect the enthusiasm for the 1st Annual Canton- Inwood Area Health Foundation Golf Outing held at Hiawatha Golf Club on July 12. The event was held to support the Canton-Inwood Area Health Foundation. With 13 teams participating, $6,500 was raised. The Johnson Feed team, consisting of Mitch Johnson, Todd Johnson, Steve Peterson and Chuck Larsgaard, took home the overall first place prize and bragging rights for the year.

After more than 40 years, several land purchases, two state governors convening informally and hundreds of personal interactions between fundraisers, public and private entities, Good Earth State Park at Blood Run was officially dedicated and the ribbon cut on the South Dakota State Park. "This land is a good land, a good place," said Calvin Harlan of the Omaha Tribe of Nebraska. "The day we were to meet to decide a name for this place, it was a stormy day and many could not make the meeting. As we were conversing, I heard my elders say to me this is a good earth. They made me think through this land, which had no squabbles, no disputes. On this land are pipestone and prayers, which are the most powerful things in our culture."

Last Thursday, area residents enjoyed their first look at the newly completed Hiawatha heights Assisted Living Center adjoining the Canton-Inwood Memorial Hospital. The open house at the facility was attended by approximately 75 people. Hiawatha Heights has twelve apartment units as well as areas for activities, dining and a comfortable with a large screen TV. The apartments are equipped with kitchenettes, handicapped bathrooms and separate bedrooms.

Randy and Deanna Ludwig are gearing up to host the 18th Annual Canton Car Show in downtown Canton this weekend. Starting in 1980 with 70 cars in parking lot at 6th and Lincoln, the show has grown many times over. Randy commented on his expectations for this year's show, "The numbers all depend on the weather we are looking for the same turnout as last year. It the weather is good, we'll have over 700 cars." Last year's bad weather kept attendance below 6,000 but the organizers are hoping to hit closer to 10,000 participants this year.

The first RSVP station in Canton to sign up for the program was the Canton Good Samaritan Center. Mae Mullinix has been named director of the RSVP Program for Canton and needs the help and encouragement of everyone in the community.

A business transaction was completed this past week, Turing over the entire complex of the Augustana Academy property in Canton to the Sioux Falls Community Committee on Alcohol Abuse Foundation. The Academy has set empty since the closing of the school following graduation in May of 1971. The facility will be used as an alcohol treatment center and will include a detoxification unit as well as provide for long range treatment and rehabilitation. The new facility, to be known as Keystone, will handle as many as 72 patients at one time.

A very disastrous fire occurred on the old Schoen farm last Sunday. Fire destroyed the large barn, granaries, cribs and all buildings except the dwelling, which was saved by very hard work. The loss is about $2,500 with $450 insurance. The farm was rented by Dan Slack, who lost a fine team of horses a team of mules, all harnesses, farming machinery and binding twine.

Louis Knudson has accepted a position at Noid's Drug Store in the place of Lute Farley who has gone to Garretson. Louis is a very competent and obliging clerk. Lute has gone into business for himself. He purchased a drug store at Garretson.

O.T. Odegaard has purchased the grocery stock of P.A. Anderson. He will put in a complete new line of staple and fancy groceries and chinaware and will open for business Saturday. Mr. Odegaard is no novice in the business and will no doubt work up a fine trade.

A LOOK BACK AT THE STORIES AND HISTORY OF LINCOLN COUNTY

By Gaynor Johnson
 Back in the day we used humor- or at least an attempt at humor- to advertise the Sioux River Folk Festival. We were trying to attract a larger audience because money was tight and we wanted the event to continue on. I don't know if ads like the one I've included in this column actually helped the cause but the festival is still going so maybe using extreme silliness did work.
 I stumbled upon this Mr. Hokey Folkie ad a few months ago while looking through boxes of festival memorabilia going back to 1980 when the festival began in Canton. We were having a fundraising event in Sioux Falls and I was looking for things to display. It's from the 18th annual festival in 1997. That year a great band from great Britain - the House Band - headlined the event. Back then the festival was still a two day event and tickets were only $12. It wasn't until 1999 that the event became a three day event as it is today.

 Speaking of events, Town and Country Day will take place at Jack Fox Park this Thursday from 5:00 - 8:00 p.m. in conjunction with the Open Air Market. You can enjoy the music of Laurel Laubach and friends, a petting zoo, community pork feed, area vendors, free watermelon and hopefully a lot of antique tractors and vehicles will surround the park.
 Happy reading as July winds down and August arrives next Tuesday.

Tracey Zylstra, Librarian

All Together Now...the Summer Reading Program continues on at the Library. There is just one week left to get your 800 minutes read before the end of July. We have had a great time these past two months with the Zoo Mobile, Mr. Twister, Jeff Quinn, Jeremy Lepak, Charlie the Noise Guy, Good Earth State Park, and the Butterfly House Ocean in Motion, not to mention all the crafts we created and LEGO structures we made. We have had such great participation and support from all our patrons who continue to realize the value of a full-time public library in our community. One last week of the display by the Prairie Threads Quilt Guild, stop by and "check it out!"

Fight or Flight?

July 21, 2023
 Most of us feel a bit of dread when going to the airport. From the time we leave our front door until we reach our final destination, a lot can go wrong. Maybe it's the crowds, long lines, flight cancellations, delays, or missing baggage, we've all had our fair share of air travel problems.
 A few weeks ago, I updated you about an important amendment I got included in this year's aviation bill to protect the airports in Watertown, Aberdeen, and Pierre. This week, the House passed the bipartisan aviation bill, and now it flies to the Senate. Before it passed, there was some opposition to my amendment—some other members of Congress wanted to cut Essential Air Service (EAS) airports.
 Without EAS airports in Watertown, Aberdeen, and Pierre, some South Dakotans would have to drive nearly seven hours to reach the closest medium or large hub airport in Minneapolis, Minnesota. Driving this far to begin the travel journey is astonishing. America has a national commitment to infrastructure, and that includes aviation. These EAS airports connect rural America to larger airports with ease.

 This year, we've seen multiple nationwide air service problems. In January, the FAA's computer system outage grounded all domestic flights. This spring, Southwest Airlines encountered a technology issue that caused thousands of flight cancellations and staffing issues. And to top it all off, we're also facing a pilot shortage.
 The aviation bill focused on improving the passenger experience from beginning to end. My colleagues and I won the battle to support EAS airports, so you don't have to drive as far to start your flight journey. The bill also included provisions to improve efficiency in the FAA, grow the aviation workforce, ensure safety, and foster innovation in America's aviation industry.
 The bill successfully passed the House with overwhelming support. I look forward to the bill getting signed into law and securing more wins for South Dakotans.

Windmill Of My Mind

by Margaret Schultz

Way back in nineteen ninety six, to be exact, I had a very unusual thing happen to me. I had just gotten into my car one warm afternoon after work. As it so happens, I was getting over a cold and still had the sniffles, and just as I sniffed, a pesky fly (which I had been trying to kill or chase out for several day) flew quite close to my nose. I suddenly realized there was something up my nose, which had not been there before. I grabbed a tissue from my purse and blew several times until –sure enough—I blew out a fly! Everyone say it with me now – “GROSS!” Yes, it was, but I could still see the humor and was glad that fly would not be bothering me again. And, with the strange mind and imagination I have, I could feel as poem taking shape in my mind. Hence, I give to you The Day The Fly Flew Up My Nose.

Sometimes my troubles get me down when I think about my woes, But nothing ever seems as bad as the day the fly flew up my nose. For problems big and problems small can sometimes get you down, They wipe that smile right off your face and replace it with a frown. I may scorch my blouse, tear my dress or get a run in my hose, But nothing ever seems as bad as the day the fly flew up my nose. The windows are dirty, the beds are unmade, the place is full of dust, And company’s coming for Sunday dinner, so cleaning is a must. The kitchen floor could use a bath and the hamper’s full of clothes, But nothing ever seems as bad as the day the fly flew up my nose. I have that book I want to read, or a letter I need to write, But Sunday’s coming mighty fast so I must clean house tonight. I cleaned the floor but a smelly sock went up the vacuum hose, But nothing ever seems as bad as the day the fly flew up my nose. The politicians sling their mud and promise not to tax, I wish when they get into office they’d remember all those facts. They promise this and promise that, their chatter makes me doze, But nothing ever seems as bad as the day the fly flew up my nose. The preacher’s sermon got plenty long and he kept stepping on my toes, But nothing ever seems as bad as the day the fly flew up my nose. The month runs out before my pay, don’t know where the money goes, But nothing ever seems as bad as the day the fly flew up my nose. So, when life’s troubles get you down, and it’ll happen, the Good Lord knows, Remember my little story about the day the fly flew up my nose.

Dave Says: Different Personality Types Can Be a Good Thing

Dave,
My husband is an entrepreneur. He has a very hard driving, energetic personality and way of doing things, while I’m more laid back and soft spoken. How can I support him best in terms of encouraging and communicating with him? I want him to know I care, that I want to help and that I’m proud of him.

Grace

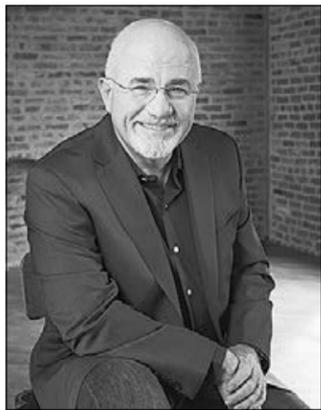

Grace,
I think you’ve already taken a good first step toward all of that by recognizing and identifying your personality styles. If he’s a hard-charging entrepreneur, there’s a good chance God sent you into his life to slow him down a little, and help him keep it between the ditches. That’s what my wife does for me, and I’m so thankful she does.

Once in a while, I’ll get so wrapped up in a project or opportunity that I can’t stop thinking about it or turn it loose—even after hours or on weekends. That’s when she knows to step in and say, “Honey, did you ever think about this possibility?” Sometimes she’s a little more straightforward, and I’ll hear something like, “You know, you really need to just slow down and chill.”

The fact that you two are wired a little differently, and that you can be thoughtful and calm when he’s all over the place, is one of the most valuable benefits you bring to your relationship. Once he understands this, he’ll begin to respect it more. And when it happens, you folks are going to win in your relationship and in business. It’s going to make such a positive impact on your lives, because you’ll be making steady progress that’s more predictable and reasonable, rather than things launching into the stratosphere and being followed by the inevitable crashes that are bound to happen from time to time.

As you grow to better understand the other’s thinking, and how each is necessary for success, a great thing will be created. Your quieter, thoughtful side, and his energy and passion to pull things forward, will become the key to you two reaching heights together that you never would’ve achieved apart from each other.

Dave Ramsey, author of Dave Says.

I love these discussions about family relationships and business. Great question, Grace!

Let’s Talk About Summer Wellness

“School’s Out for the Summer”... that famous tune that children all love to sing as they near their “summer vacation.” Summer can be a wonderful time of year filled with sunshine, extra play time, hanging out with friends, going swimming, fishing, or some other fun adventures. While summer seems exciting for most, others are left with feelings of uncertainty, loneliness, boredom, and chaos.

It’s important as caretakers of children to be aware that summer break can be hard, and it’s important to ensure kids are taking care of their wellness this summer.

Let’s run through a brief Mental Wellness Checklist:

- Do they get adequate sleep each night?
- Are the eating nutritious/balanced meals?
- Have they seen their friends or interacted with same age peers?
- Are they taking a break from the couch to get some physical activity each day?
- Is there any structure or expectations for them throughout the day?

Let’s talk a bit more about each of these:

Sleep

On average kids should be getting 8 to 10 hours of sleep each night. During the summer, children tend to either stay up way too late, or sleep in way too long. It’s important to monitor children’s sleep patterns to ensure they are getting adequate sleep on a regular basis. Sleeping too little can leave children feeling tired, are likely to be more irritable, and will have a harder time taking directions. Sleeping too long can leave them feeling sluggish and lacking motivation.

Nutrition

Over the summer, with the lack of routine and sometimes very busy schedules, children can either eat too much or too little and go for quick/processed foods. Eating a balanced diet is important to mental wellness. Try to keep a stock of healthy options available for children throughout the summer, promote eating at mealtimes, and limiting snacking.

Peer Interactions

Summer can be lonely for several children when they are used to seeing their friends/peers during the school day. Set up some playdates or look into summer programs through the school, local churches, or nearby communities.

Get up and Play

It may sound appealing to children to just watch tv, play video games, or hang out in their room all day, but all the sitting around time can lead to boredom, feeling down, and lacking purpose. It is important to “get up and play” at least 30 minutes a day. Exercise creates endorphins which are natural “happy chemicals.”

Routine

Having a routing during the summer can be much more challenging as the family is juggling various summer activities, trying to get kids to go to sleep at a decent time “But mom, it’s still light out”, and having more ‘free’ time during the day. However, routines are important for children to feel more safe and secure. It can help them feel motivated and increase their self-worth. Some children will need more structure such as an hour by hour activity guide/checklist, and some children will do fine with having a to-do list for the day. It is important to also limit screen time for children, and encourage other activities like reading, being creative, completing a project, getting outside, etc.

Help children take care of their summer wellness, by promoting good sleep and eating habits, encouraging exercise, interacting with peers, and establishing a routine. While it is important for children to maintain their mental wellness, these steps alone may not be enough to help your child. If you feel like your child is struggling with more significant behavioral or emotional difficulties, please reach out to a mental health professional for additional help.

Car Show Draws 431 Entries

Back in the days like 1998 Canton had a lot of good things and events going on. This is a 1998 downtown picture of the annual car show in late July.

This was one of the entries from out-of-town showing a very old car turned into a fun modified Hot Rod. These style of cars sometimes went to Marion South Dakota to the drag strip over there.

This is a nice Classic Car either restored or well maintained car. We think that the person in the photo is Todd Esche. Todd was always into classic cars and still is today.

Every year there would be special featured car brought in from all over. This is one special feature. It is a 1969 Corvette all done up, back in 1998 there was not much competition for car shows. There wasn’t any car shows in other towns around here. Now a days, almost every town around, even little towns have some sort of a car show.

By Rollie Steck

The Canton City Commission met in regular session on Monday, July 17 at 7 p.m. at the Depot. All Commissioners were present at the time of roll call.

With No Visitors to be Heard, the only item under Old Business was the Drainage of Off North Grant. This item was tabled at the May 1, May 15 and June 19 City Commission meetings. Citizen Roger Simunek has presented a request for improvement to the North end of Grant Street. Currently, storm water runs off Grant Street and through the field to the North. The proposal is to construct a French Drain off of Grant Street and connect to existing drain tile where the City constructed a rip rap pit a few years ago to slow down the water drainage. Motion to approve by Commissioner Paul Garbers. Seconded by Commissioner Jerry Chaon. Unanimous approval.

The first item under New Business was a Petition to Vacate a Portion of Twelfth Street. A petition to vacate the portion of Twelfth Street running East and West and extending from Cedar Street to South Main Street has been submitted by Citizens Lloyd and Claudia Twedt. A motion and 2/3 vote is required to move forward with the vacation. Mayor Sandra Lunstrom opened the hearing. With no discussion, motion to approve by Commissioner Tyler Larson. Seconded by Chaon. Unanimous approval.

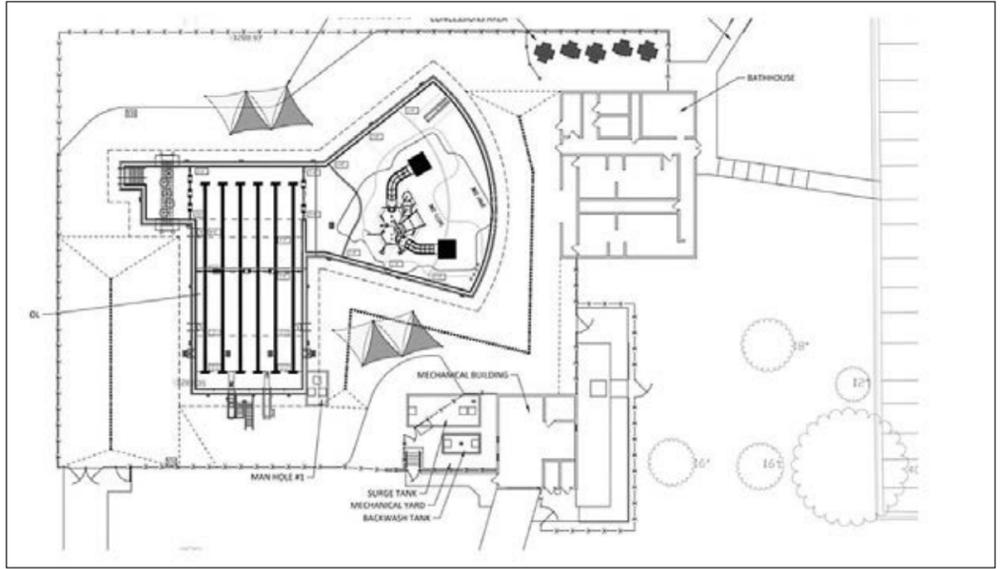

Next under New Business was the Hearing for Planning & Zoning Ordinance Relating to Bed and Breakfast and Vacation Home Establishments. The Planning & Zoning Commission conducted their hearing on June 27 and recommends approval of passage of an Ordinance relating to Bed and Breakfast and Vacation Home Establishments amending Urban Reserve permitted uses, Urban Reserve conditional uses, Residential conditional uses, & definitions; repealing & reinstating the Bed & Breakfast Establishment Chapter; and adding a Vacation

Home Establishments Chapter. Planning & Zoning regulations only include Bed & Breakfast Establishments, therefore this Ordinance was created to better encompass the property type. Mayor Lundstrom opened the Hearing. With no proponents and no opponents, Mayor Lundstrom closed the Hearing. Motion to hold the First Hearing by Commissioner Paul Garbers. No second and vote is required with a First Hearing.

The Building Permit - Open Air Market Sign at Jack Fox Park was next on the agenda. Citizen Jenny Gubbels with the Open Air Market has contacted the City in regards to having a temporary sign at the Southwest corner of Jack Fox Park each year from June through August. The purpose would be to inform the public of the Open Air Market. Canton Open Air Market Board Member Dan Heinemann has completed the Building Permit and was present at the June 27 Planning & Zoning Commission meeting for questions. The Planning & Zoning Commission approved the placement of the sign and has recommended approval from the City Commission. Motion to approve by Garbers. Seconded by Larson. Unanimous approval.

Next under New Business was to Award Pool Bid. Mayor Lundstrom read the bids. Commissioner Kris York asked if they would open the new pool without a bathhouse. Finance Officer Kyle Cwach mentioned they would need a temporary facility to open the pool. Motion to accept the bid from Helm Mechanical for stages 1 & 2 by Larson. Seconded by Garbers. Pool Committee Member Todd Gannon went to the podium and explained what the bid entailed. (The image above is what was approved, but only for the pool and mechanical. Bathhouse to come at a later date.) Expected Completion date and opening is set for June 2024. With no further discussion, motion to approve by Larson. Seconded by Garbers. Unanimous approval.

Land Water Conservation Fund Grant Extension Request Letter

Next under New Business was a Street Closure Request - Water Fights. The Canton Fire Department has requested a street closure on July 22 from approximately 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on either East 4th Street from North Lincoln Street to North Dakota Street or North Dakota Street from East 5th Street to East 4th Street depending on wind for water fights. Motion to approve by Chaon. Seconded by York. Unanimous approval.

As part of a nationwide initiative, South Dakota Public Water Suppliers and the South Dakota Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources (DANR) are asking residents to submit information about their water service pipe material. This initiative will allow providers to document the presence of lead service pipes in their systems. As part of the initiative, the City of Canton would like to offer a one-time $50 credit on one month's water bill for those that complete the survey online at survey.sdwaterpipes.com. Motion to approve by York. Seconded by Garbers. Unanimous approval.

Set the Special Election Date was next on the agenda. The South Dakota Secretary of State's office has provided calendars for election dates for the vote on the municipal garbage ordinance and has recommended September 12 or September 26. The last couple items on the agenda were discussion regarding the 4-H Grounds. There will be more discussion to come in the future.

With no further discussion, motion to enter executive session at 8:03 p.m. by Larson. Seconded by Garbers. Unanimous approval. After reconvening into regular session, motion to adjourn by Garbers. Seconded by Larson. Unanimous approval.

South Dakota Farm Income Predicted To Fall, But Farmers Remain Optimistic

Abbey Stegenga

South Dakota News Watch

Farmers in South Dakota and across the U.S. will likely take home less income this year because of increasing input costs and decreasing commodity prices. However, halfway through the growing season, some are optimistic the state could have a good year if the weather cooperates.

"We're relying on rain throughout the growing season, but for right now, it's so far, so good. If we continue to get rains, we should have a pretty good crop," said Glenn Storm, who grows corn and soybeans east of Corsica.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's 2023 Farm Income Forecast from February said it expects net farm income to drop nationwide by $30.5 billion in inflation-adjusted dollars in 2023. Net farm income reflects an operation's income after production expenses from the year have been subtracted. However, this year's projected net cash farm income is almost $29 billion above the 2002-2021 average.

For the Northern Great Plains, the USDA forecasts a 12% drop in net cash income for farm businesses.

The predicted decrease would follow 2022's record high forecasted net cash farm income of $195.3 billion. Crop prices surged around the country last year after Russia invaded Ukraine, one of the world's top agricultural producers.

"There's always challenges that farmers and ranchers face across our state, and one of the best things that our producers do is step up to those challenges and find ways to overcome them," said Heather Gessner, a livestock business management field specialist at South Dakota State University Extension.

With a recent decline in corn and soybean prices, stable production could help net farm income levels remain steady throughout 2023, Gessner said.

"On an individual basis, (net farm income) is probably going to vary quite a bit. But as a whole, we'll probably be somewhere in that normal type of range," Gessner said.

Both Gessner and Dave Schriever, vice president at First National Bank in Philip, in western South Dakota, said it's too early in the season to know if the net farm income for South Dakota will see a decrease this year.

"If production is good and the price is lower, you can still have a pretty good gross profit. The worst thing that can happen is if prices are low and you're in the part of the country where production is weak. It's kind of a double whammy then," Schriever said.

Cash receipts, which reflect the cash income farmers receive from commodity sales, for both crops and animal products are forecast to decrease this year by about 4%.

Corn and soybean cash receipts are projected to decrease nationally by 7.1% and 10.6%, respectively. However, prices will still remain relatively high in comparison to previous years.

"Unfortunately, over the last couple weeks, corn has lost about a dollar and a half a bushel, so that's kind of a challenge," Storm said.

The latest trends:

- The price for South Dakota corn per bushel decreased by 9.6% from May 2022 to May 2023, according to USDA data.

- The price received for soybeans per bushel in South Dakota this May rang in at nearly 12% lower than the price in May 2022.

- Sunflowers in South Dakota received roughly 39.7% fewer dollars per hundred pounds this May than in May 2022.

Schriever said the lower crop prices result from a global supply and demand pattern. When agricultural regions throughout the world experience quality moisture levels, production tends to go up and prices go down, he said.

"This year, prices are lower. They're still higher than what we've seen sometimes in the past. But they need to be at this level or better in order to show a profit with these extra costs and the inflation that's with us right now," Schriever said.

Lower cash receipts throughout the nation won't be the only challenge for the state's farmers this season.

Total production costs, the expenses required for items like fuel and feed, are expected to see a slight increase of 1.3% in inflation-adjusted terms. However, the USDA forecasts these expenses to have increased by 11% from 2021 to 2022.

Expenses for fertilizer, feed and fuel are expected to decrease this year from 2022's heights but remain high, according to the USDA.

"Everything, even parts, any kind of repair parts or machinery, is really high-priced and sometimes it takes a while to get it," Storm said.

Among the costs for Plains farmers, according to USDA:

- Producers spent about $3.25 billion dollars on fuel in 2021, which is up from the $2.69 billion from 2020 and $2.78 billion spent in 2019.

- Fertilizer totals reached $7 billion in 2021, which is up from the nearly $5.6 billion spent in 2020 and the $5.4 billion spent in 2019.

- Plains farmers spent over $14 billion on feed in 2021, which is up from the nearly $11 billion spent in 2020 and the $12.25 billion spent in 2019.

Throughout the COVID-19 pandemic, farmers saw higher fuel costs and slow supply chains. Gessner said expensive fuel prices caused suppliers to increase their prices to account for rising shipping costs.

"There are certain things you can do without, for some time at least, but most of the stuff a farmer or rancher needs, they have to buy. So they pay the extra cost and hopefully they can make it up in the end when they sell their products," Schriever said.

Farmers throughout the state are having to adjust to the normal that is higher production costs.

"You have to try and make the best of it. You have to try and keep a positive outlook. I mean, that's the only thing that keeps a farmer going. If you had a bad outlook, you wouldn't be putting seed in the ground," said Ron Neugebauer, who grows corn and soybeans near Dimock.

While production costs remain high across the nation, many say the cattle market is flourishing in South Dakota.

"The cattle markets are as strong as they've been in nearly 10 years, and it looks to stay that way through the fall," Schriever said.

Cattle receipts are expected to remain relatively stable in 2023, according to the Farm Income Forecast.

According to data gathered by South Dakota State University Extension, cash prices for feeder cattle in South Dakota increased by an average of 15.6% from 2021 to 2022.

However, the number of cattle in the state has fallen from 4 million in 2021 to 3.55 million in 2023, according to USDA data. Gessner said several years of drought, which led to more expensive hay prices, encouraged some farmers to reduce their herd sizes.

The decrease in cattle numbers has supported the higher cash receipts for cattle, she said, as the demand for beef remains high.

Despite the various forecasts for agriculture in 2023, much of the success for South Dakota's No. 1 industry hinges on the weather.

While the state did see plenty of snowfall this winter, Gessner and Storm said it wasn't enough to provide moisture throughout the dry spring.

"We did have some snow, but it was probably only a third of what we needed to catch up and to break even from last year's drought. So while it was snowy and it was a pain, it wasn't enough snow to compensate for the amount of moisture that we were missing," Gessner said.

Neugebauer said the rainfall has varied this year at his farm.

Early in the spring, he said he got a 3-inch rain. When Dimock, which is about 10 miles from Neugebauer's property, got up to 5 inches of rain, his area only got 1.

"You can have all the modern technology and all the modern things, and we still have to rely on the good Lord for the moisture from above to make things work," Neugebauer said.

As of July 4, roughly 51% of the state was experiencing abnormally dry conditions to an extreme drought, according to the U.S. Drought Monitor. This dryness prevails throughout the eastern half of South Dakota.

Most of the west, however, has seen its fair share of rainy weather.

"Especially in late May and in June, (the west) just was in a pattern where they got consistent thunderstorm activity day in and day out," said Phil Schumacher, a meteorologist at the National Weather Service in Sioux Falls.

The state and its farmers will need widespread rainfall to ease dry conditions, he said.

South Dakota could expect a chance for more consistent rainfall in August and September across the eastern side of the state, Schumacher said.

"It's not a guarantee. But there may be a little bit of hope for some improvement as we head into the latter half of summer here," he said.

Sportstalk

By Rich Beitzel

It has been a very interesting weekend for me as I went to my 28th little kids football equipment handout for the Johnson Feed team of 5th and 6th graders and we will get started with practice on July 31st and go until October with the playoffs. It is a long season and the boys will get around 10 games and mine and Nick Thompson's job is to teach them some basic football stuff and to have fun. So if you see some little football players riding their bikes around the football fields and practice fields please watch out for them and Go C-Hawks.

Friday night Teresa and myself tried something so daring and very exciting to do because we didn't know what to expect and if we could handle it at all. Of course I am talking about going to the Barbie movie and sit in the 2nd row in the front with I can only guess was about 500,000 young girls and a couple parents and we didn't have either with us cause all we had was a little popcorn and a diet Dew. I knew the movie was going to be corny cause it was a Barbie movie but I hate to say it but it wasn't too bad of a movie and the kids were loud and having fun and all I knew is that I was a 63 year old guy sitting in a Barbie movie and in the 2nd row so I just watched and hoped Teresa would behave herself. We both enjoyed the movie and happily skipped out of the theater like we were both 11 years old again but we also waited an hour after the movie to leave just in case someone we knew might of seen us coming out. I know all of you that came out of there that didn't have kids with them so don't laugh at this old man enjoying Barbie because I also own a Nebraska Cornhusker Barbie cheerleader I got at my 40th birthday party. Now I must get back to watching MLB highlights then a good shoot'em up movie and look for my man-card.

Finally on Sunday I went to one of the biggest sports events in South Dakota and this year I participated in it and of course I am talking about the Oakland Cornhole Tournament at Troy and Marsha's house. It is one of the toughest tournaments I have ever been in as it was a heated battle (cause it was hot out!) and once the teams were decided I had the youngest member on my team in Shane Sehr and I knew he was an athlete and he knew I wasn't. After an hour of warm up we were ready to go and it didn't take long to realize that I haven't played this in a really long time and Shane realized it even sooner but we won our first battle by defeating Sterling and his partner Teresa so it was a satisfying first round victory. Next we had Pam and Hunter and after scoring too much too many times we lost our first game and I thought we both took it hard but we talked about it and shook off the defeat and knew we could bounce back. We came back and won our next 3 matches in a row and then on to the title match against Gary and Ralph but we would have to win 2 matches and we knew they wouldn't be easy but in the 1st game we won by inches as we were happy to get out with the win setting up the cornhole battle that you only see in the pro leagues.

You know it was a heated battle as they all wanted to break for supper but Shane and myself knew I would eat too much and we didn't want to risk our momentum so we passed and Gary and Ralph knew they just wanted to finish us young kids off. They got off to a 10-0 lead but Shane got off some huge throws and I hit a couple good point throws and next thing you know it was down to one or two big bag tosses and Shane hit the final one with a shot right down the goal for the 21-20 win for the Oakland Cornhole Championship and after the hour long celebration and award ceremony it was a perfect time to go eat supper. So I hope everyone is out enjoying some good old fashion family time before summer ends and hope you enjoy my picture with my partner just to prove it really happened like I said it did or you can just trust me cause you know I don't ever make stuff up in Sportstalk.

The Pressure is on! Women's World Cup Kicks Off Daunting Women's U.S. Team Taking on the World

By Virginia Olson
For the next four weeks of summer, women's soccer will take center stage.

The FIFA Women's World Cup is underway in Australia and New Zealand, with a record 32 teams vying to win the tournament. The tournament, which will conclude on Aug. 20 in Sydney, is expected to draw unprecedented crowds and TV viewers as women's soccer continues to reach new heights in popularity.

Among the teams competing against the four-time champion United States, the 2022 Euro victor - England - and the eight countries making World Cup debut: Haiti, Ireland, Morocco, Panama, Philippines, Portugal, Vietnam and Zambia. Team USA started their journey Friday, July 21 playing Vietnam in Group E winning 3-0. Also in Group E, the Netherlands and Portugal. The U.S. will play the Netherlands, Wednesday, July 26 and Portugal Tuesday, August 1.

YEARS THE WOMEN HAVE WON THE WORLD CUP

- 1991
- 1999
- 2015
- 2019

No team, men's or women's, has won World Cup three times in a row.

Great-looking attire
Apparel-wise, the team is well outfitted. Nike went all out with good-looking attire.

TV viewers got their first glimpse of the US Women's team Friday. They were all business and looked sharp sporting tailored suits with a United States logo on the right chest and some flashy sunglasses before playing their first match against Vietnam. The matching player suits were made by Nike and included a double-breasted suit jacket, trouser, trench and shirt. According to the Nike designer, the suit expressed resilience, strength and beauty.

The Women's World Cup jersey also was released in April and is available to the public but at a huge price tag of $95. The shirt designed by Nike is a fresh splatter design, with red and blue splotches covering a white background. The socks have bold tiger stripes. It was the jersey the U.S. team wore in its first match. The "away" jersey is dark blue.

Getting paid - The winning team gets $10.5M

Pay has become a major issue, and FIFA President Gianni Infantino is making no guarantees that players will be paid correctly. He says that national federations are meant to pay players and that FIFA is engaging with them on the issue.

A paycheck of at least $30,000 means a lot to many players; the average annual salary worldwide for women professional players is $14,000. As of now, the 732 players participating in the World Cup were promised at least $30,000 each.

Female soccer players earn $.25 to the dollar of men's World Cup.

Still for the winning team there is prize money so teams are vying not only for glory but also for cash - the champion team takes home $4,290,000 for their association and $270,000 per player. Teams in the tournament must bring a squad of 23 players, including three goalkeepers - which adds up to $10,500,000 total for the winning team and players.

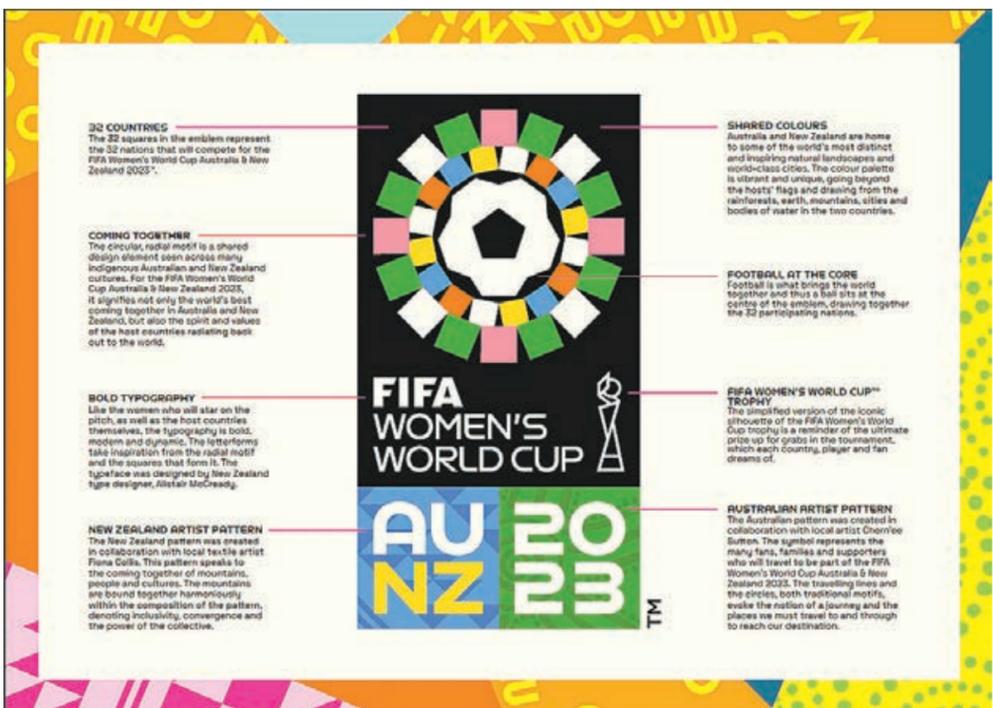

Top FOX Sports broadcasters
A top broadcasting team was sent to Australia and New Zealand to cover World Cup.

In June, FOX Sports announced its broadcasting roster for this summer's major soccer tournament. American soccer legend Carli Lloyd is one of the new faces to FOX Sports Women's World Cup coverage. She will be a studio analyst, and this is her first Women's World Cup as an announcer. Rob Stone will serve as FOX Sports' lead studio host and will be joined by Alexi Lalas, Stu Holden and Heather O'Reilly who helped the United States win the 2015 FIFA Women's World Cup.

The time zone challenge
The 2023 World Cup's biggest inconvenience will be the time difference. Play takes place in New Zealand and Australia. There are nine host cities that are spread across four distinct time zones, which are anywhere between 13 and 17 hours ahead of U.S. Central Time (and, therefore, up to 19 hours ahead of Pacific Time).

USA - A resume like no other
The United States women's national team may be the best international soccer team of all time, for one reason: the winning.

Unlike other international teams, like Brazil in the 1960's and 1970's, or the Total Football Dutch teams, or Spain's tiki-taka in the early part of last decade, the U.S. women have never been known for a particular style of play or an iconic on-field look. It's their record that defines them, even more than legendary players like Mia Hamm, Michelle Akers or Christie Rampone. Stars like Megan Rapinoe. And controversial players like goalie Hope Solo.

The USWNT has four World Cups. It has four Olympic gold medals. And if you, like many official records, treat penalty shot losses as draws, then the U.S. has lost four matches - ever - at both the World Cup and at the Olympics.

When you can match up every loss for the last 32 years with a trophy or a gold medal, that's quite the resume.

All bets on the US

Sportsbooks have tabbed the U.S. Women's national team as the odds-on favorite to win the 2023 Women's World Cup and to become the first team to ever win three-straight championships. Spain, England and Germany are each projected by each sportsbook to reach the quarterfinals.

Yes. There is the pressure and the weight of history. But there are facts that can't be ignored.

This also means that there is as much pressure on the Americans coming into World Cup as there is on any other team in the tournament. When the trophy case is already full to bursting, there's only one way to succeed: add another trophy.

But there are the facts that can't be ignored. But some do not consider the U.S. Team to be a favorite because top scoring players have injuries and recent results haven't been stellar.

Knee injuries seem to be the culprit.

Becky Sauerbrunn, the team's captain, spiritual leader and rock at center back is out. Mallory Swanson, the breakout star of 2022 and 2023, at forward is out. Christen Press, who played every game at the 2019 World Cup and Sam Mewis, who played all but one, are out. And Megan Rapinoe, the team's best-known and most popular player who is at age 38 - and with injury trouble of her own - might be mostly on the team for short appearances, leadership and general good vibes.

Hopefully, teammates will step up. There is the firepower in reserve. Alex Morgan may be 34, but with 121 goals and 207 appearances for Americans, she is the starting forward. Flanking her will be Sophia Smith, the 2022 NWSL MVP, who has 24 goals in 26 starts over the past two seasons for Portland. And Trinity Rodman, who plays forward may be a breakout star. (She is the daughter of infamous former basketball player Dennis Rodman.) U.S. goalkeeper Alyssa Naeher is also the favorite to win the Golden Glove award - given to the goalkeeper with the most shutouts in the tournament.

Still, the U.S. women have also suffered the indignity of losing three consecutive games, in October, on the road against England and Spain and at home to Germany. It was the first time they have lost at home since 2017, and the first time they had lost three in a row anywhere since 2001.

The U.S. Team has some real top contenders. Spain, France and even England will test the U.S. and its mettle. They believe they have opportunities and answers to the US team. But nobody remembers who was injured, or who was new to the squad. The only thing anyone remembers is whether the team came home with a trophy.
