Welcome New Canton Barn Owners

By: Kala Hazelhoff

Tyler and Courtney Tjeerdsma are the proud new owners of the Canton Barn. They live in Sioux Falls with their three children Zayden, Kinley, and Casen. Tyler is originally from Avon and Courtney from Brandon. Tyler works as a fire inspector for Sioux Falls Fire Rescue while Courtney is a part time data analyst for Animalytix. Rugged Cross Stables in Sioux Falls is also owned and operated by the couple.

The Tjeerdsma's were married at the Canton barn, where they simply fell in love with the venue. Since both grew up rurally, they understand all that an old barn represents. They reached out to Tim and Kalli Blackstone when they announced they were closing. They asked if they would be interested in selling it to them, which has led them to owning the barn.

"We are just beyond thrilled for this opportunity that Tim and Kalli have presented us with. We can't wait to get going on the first of the year. Our wedding day at The Canton Barn was incredibly special and we can't wait to continue that for brides."

The Tjeerdsma's plan is to immediately remodel the on-site farmstead house into lodging. The house will sleep up to ten people. They will be offering services to bridal parties such as: pre/post wedding quarters, enhanced bridal suite, and smaller sized groom's dinners. Couples will also now be able to choose to add horses to their wedding days, whether that be for photo opportunities or brides riding down the aisle. The horses will add to the setting of the venue and the Tjeerdsma's are excited to add this option for bridal parties.

"We just want to thank the Canton community for welcoming us with open arms. This is a big undertaking for us so to have the support of the community is huge. We are looking forward to giving back to the community just as Tim and Kalli did. We would also like to thank Tim and Kalli again. Without them, none of this would be possible. They have helped us tremendously through this process and have created such a great reputation in the wedding world. We can't wait to carry everything they have worked so hard to create on."

Stay tuned for events coming up at the Canton Barn!

Toys for Canton Area Tots Blessed 38 Families

The Canton Area Toys for Tots helped 38 families this year getting Christmas Presents for the 137 kids who would have gone without. Each year tags are hung on the trees around Canton for each kid that needed help with presents. Community members volunteered last Monday night to help wrap all the gifts for each child.

Canton Good Samaritan Home Celebrates Christmas

The Canton GSS celebrated Christmas last Thursday with gifts, singing, The Grinch and Santa. Laural Laubach, Pam McClaren, Carrie Kruse and Van Kiley all volunteered their time to help the residents celebrate. Lots of singing and bell playing set the mood for the holiday cheer. The staff even dressed up in ugly sweaters and Christmas clothing.

Sioux Valley Unearthed

Late October, many of the Civil War Reenactors who were in Canton last year, met again for an event at Harrisonville Missouri. It was an interesting event as it commemorated a series of encounters on the outskirts of Kansas City. Confederate guerilla groups, commonly called bushwhackers, and militia were supplied by southern sympathizers in Cass County. The Union General, Thomas Ewing, found it hard to secure the territory for his soldiers and union civilians, therefore he ordered that all civilians loyal to the union should evacuate to areas where they would be safe. Anyone who would not take the oath of allegiance and move was ordered to leave their homes. Their home and crops were to be destroyed. Problem was if you took the oath the Confederates would burn you out if you didn't, the Union forces would burn you out. The area became known as the burnt district or burnt chimneys.

At this event there were four different battlefields and the idea was that CSA troops would be found at a certain place. Union forces would be dispatched to take care of the situation. Then another group would pop up somewhere else. These were always small skirmishes never large-scale battles but it kept everyone busy. Even late in the afternoon when there was supposed to be a time of rest, out of nowhere the Rebel troops advanced to within twenty yards of the Union camp unseen and opened fire sending soldiers to their muskets and into line.

While I was there, I handed out almost 90 handbills to both CS and US troops as invitations to next years Canton Civil War Days. Groups that were not represented last year had heard that it was a good event and that the community and committee supported the reenactors efforts to portray history in an educational manner. Both sides of the 'conflict' indicated they planned on attending Canton Civil War Days in August of 24.

As we reenactors close this year and plan ahead to holding the Canton Civil War Days on August 17-18 of 2024, I would ask the community to engage in volunteering to make this next event bigger and better. Your time, your talent and your treasure would be greatly appreciated. Begin to watch for more articles and information in the early spring.

A LOOK BACK AT THE STORIES AND HISTORY OF LINCOLN COUNTY

By Gaynor Johnson

Reading the December 14 edition of the Sioux Valley News one story stood out that put a big smile on my face. It was on page five and involved Eric Hohman's decision to throw his hat into the ring and run for the District 16 State Senate seat currently held by Jim Bolin. Before we go any further let me state that this is not an endorsement for Mr. Hohman. I'm quite sure that most of you wouldn't pay much attention to me if I did say he's the most qualified person for this job or avoid voting for him at all cost because he's backed by Big Money Scandinavians who want to have lutefisk named the State Food of South Dakota. After all this is a history column and I've always tried to keep my political views out of what I write.

Getting back to the story, one of the first things I did after reading it was to check out a great photo of a much younger Eric Hohman taken back in 1966. It was from an ad for his father's business in Canton-Freeman and Hohman Veterinarians. Eric is standing between his father, Dr. Paul Hohman, and another gentleman. On the far left is a very bearded Dr. Robert F. Freeman. This photograph was taken in front of their office at 207 E. 5th St. and was included in the Canton Centennial Souvenir booklet. Hoping to verify that was actually Eric in this photo I gave him a call and he told me that was indeed him at the ripe old age of 9. From the look on his face it appears he wasn't too happy about posing for this photograph. He probably wished he was at the swimming pool with his friends.

In the 1985 History of Lincoln County it states that Paul Hohman was raised near Larchwood, Iowa. It goes on to say that he graduated from Iowa State and joined Dr. Freeman in 1958.

Arthur and Palma Roe Family

The parents of Arthur G. and Palma M. Roe were all born in Norway. Palma Roe's family moved here from Claremont, Iowa, in the same caravan as the Schiger family in 1868. Mrs. Roe's father (Martin Monrad) came to his sister's (Mrs. Wright) in Menominee, Wis. He worked in a lumber mill in the office. He was later encouraged by Jim Wahl to come to South Dakota to take a homestead in Lincoln County. He married Karen Shulson and remained on the farm. They had six children: Marie, Alfred, Phine, David, Christine, and Palma. All are deceased except Palma Roe.

These pioneers battled with grasshoppers, the drought, blizzards, the Indians, and even Jesse James and his outlaw brothers who came through this part of the country, stealing the best horses and leaving their old nags behind. These pioneers were brave men and women who never faltered or gave up. They carried on and built up what became the finest farming country in Dakota Territory. Most of them now are sleeping in their little country cemetery overlooking the scenes of their earlier struggles.

Palma Roe celebrated her 95th birthday on April 21, 1984 and is living on her farm with her daughter Maevis. Mrs. Roe attended Augustana Academy and graduated in 1908. She attended St. Olaf College one year and sang harmony under F. Melius Christiansen. She sang in the ladies chorus and played piano under Miss Cheneviert. She taught school two years and was organist in the Canton Lutheran Church for seven years.

Mr. Roe was a member of the Rotary and the Lincoln Debating Society. Aruthur and Palma were charter members of the South Dakota Farm Bureau since its beginning in 1920. Arthur was also honored at Brookings, as an eminent farmer in Lincoln County. He received a certificate from the Pioneer Livestock Shipper Club. Arthur and Palma received certificates of recognition from the South Dakota Farm Bureau. Mrs. Palma Roe was crowned the queen in Lennox at the Lincoln County Senior Citizens celebration in 1983.

Time will tell, as it always does, whether Eric will become our new South Dakota State Senator from District 16. I wish him and Mona all the best and look forward to see how this senate race turns out.

Another Canton couple recently had quite a day. On Sunday, December 17, I was very fortunate to play a small part in Last Hurrah for the Blackstones at the Canton Barn. It was really great to see the large crowd that showed up to bid farewell to these two long time Canton residents who put their hearts, souls, and sweat into this fine establishment north of town.

The couple that will be taking over the Canton Barn, Courtney and Tyler Tjeerdsma, were in attendance and if they run this place half as well as the Blackstones did they will still be very successful. I wish them the best of luck.

Of course, Tim and Kalli aren't going anywhere and I'm sure they will stay involved in our community in one way or another. The next time you see them please thank them for all they have done to promoted Canton and the surrounding area since they opened The Canton Barn in 2016.

When you read this Christmas will be over and the new year will begin next Monday. I hope you all had a wonderful Christmas with family and friends and that 2024 is a good year for you and those you love. Since this will be my final column for 2023 and the last week the Blackstones call the Canton Barn their own I thought I'd include the family history of Art and Palma Roe who once called this first farm north of Canton their home. I've used this story before but I believe it's worth reprinting. Happy reading, Happy New Year and pray for peace in the world.

HOMETOWN girl

By: Kala Hazelhoff

There is something to the magic of Christmastime. When you have had a long day and are finally greeting the couch you thought you would never see. The kids are asleep, and you have a little time to recharge. The lights are low, and everything feels different in the warm Christmas light. Memories of Christmases past come to mind with every smell, song, or movie.

My mom LOVES Christmas. I have fond Christmas memories growing up with my three younger sisters. The scheming of presents, barely holding in the excitement for a certain gift to be unwrapped on the 25th. Anticipation of opening said gifts after being teased about them for a month or longer. "I have secrets!" my mom will chime. Seeing "The Nutcracker" at an early age, watching the dancers spin around prettily in the most beautiful costumes I had ever seen. The Christmas dresses that we would wear for Christmas Eve service were usually matching and lovingly made by Grandma Jeanine. The reindeer food that would lay in the sparkly snow. Falling asleep watching Christmas tree lights flicker, with a family favorite holiday movie playing. The smorgasbord of treats on Christmas Eve. Not being able to sleep for more than two hours because you cannot stop wondering when Santa will come. Whispering to my sleepless sisters that we should go check out the tree, hours before we were supposed to be awake. If only everyday felt like Christmas.

Now it is not as easy for all of us to be in the same house on the same day, but the time we do get together is cherished. Now, I also get to celebrate Christmas as a mother, and I understand why my mom would get so excited about the season. I hope I make Christmas as magical for my kids as she did for my sisters and I. Watching your children decorate the Christmas tree (no matter how haphazardly they place ornaments) or singing beloved carols together is a magic all in its own. The best gift of all is to spend time with beloved friends and family. I am so happy this year my sister Kate is home, and we will all be together.

With a warm heart from this hometown girl, I wish you and your families all, "Merry Christmas!"

Windmill Of My Mind

by Margaret Schultz

Up on the housetop, reindeer pause,
Where is dear, old Santy Claus?
Stuck in the chimney, well, I declare!
Why did he eat that last éclair?
Too many cookies and Christmas bars,
He wont even fit most compact cars.
That's why he rides in s shiny sleigh,
He's much too large for his Chevrolet.
So Dasher and Dancer and the other deer,
Have a heavy load, year after year.
If only he would lose a few,
His feet would be in better view.
But just like me, he eats and eats,
Munching on those Christmas treats.
Year after year it is always the same,
With no one but myself to blame.
A piece of yummy, chocolate fudge.
I wonder why that scale wont budge?
I really should stick to my latest diet,
When Christmas is past, I think I'll try it.

THEN ON A MORE SERIOUS NOTE:

Well, here we are – smack dab in the middle of the Christmas season and busier than ever. It has always bothered me that there is so much to do and so much turmoil in the world- how on earth are we supposed to celebrate the birth of Jesus? I would look at the lovely, peaceful Christmas cards, sing the beautiful "Silent Night", read a feel-good story that takes place in a snowy village long ago and far away, and think "that's the way it should be. But it isn't." And I would stomp my way through most of Christmas, angry and frustrated, grumbling all the way instead of rejoicing all the way. But something occurred to me the other day that has made me look at it all a little differently.

You're going to laugh or say "Duh!" when I tell you what finally sunk into this stubborn heart of mine, but I'll tell you anyway. Jesus was not born into a peaceful world. He wasn't placed in a sweet-smelling nursery, painted blue and decorated with little boy things. His mother wasn't even on pre-natal vitamins and his earthly father, Joseph, didn't pass out cigars. The shepherds who came to bow down and worship, left behind flocks of worry and the wise men had to worry about being followed, lest Herod discover where they were and follow them, in order to kill the child, Jesus.

The world was in turmoil then, just as it is today. We cannot wait for the perfect time or moment to worship and adore Him, or it will just never happen. We need to go "rejoicing on our way," not just after we "arrive."

So, you see, I'd know all those things all my life, but for some reason they spoke to me in a clear, loving, gentle way, and I am so thankful that for once in my life, I was listening.

We put lights outside over the weekend, even on the crisp, burned spruce we always decorate. In some ways, it seemed pitiful to be putting the twinkly, pretty lights on a dead tree, but I thought of how our lives are sometimes dead or dying because we are not connect to the Saviour – our source of life. But when Christ comes into our hearts, He lights up our lives and brings beauty for ashes. That tree, burned in the October fire, has special beauty and meaning to me. For it represents what we can become and how we can let our light shine in a dark world.

Dave Says: For Starters, Have A Plan

Dear Dave,
My mom and dad always told me to live within my means. As an adult, I've made some mistakes with money, including falling right back into debt after paying off everything. I'm tired of this rollercoaster, and I want to get control of my finances for good. Can you give me some advice on where to start?

Melissa

Dear Melissa,
It's frustrating, isn't it? But making mistakes with money means just one thing. It means you're human. We've all done it. Think about this, though. We're approaching a traditional time of the year for changes. On top of that, you're smart enough to have realized what you've done in the past hasn't worked.

Believe it or not, I was once in the exact same spot you are now. When it happened to me, there were three pieces to the puzzle that helped me break the cycle. One was fear. Specifically, I was scared to death that I wouldn't be able to take care of my family, and that I'd retire broke. Now, don't misunderstand me. No one should live their lives in fear. But a healthy, reasonable level of fear can provide needed motivation.

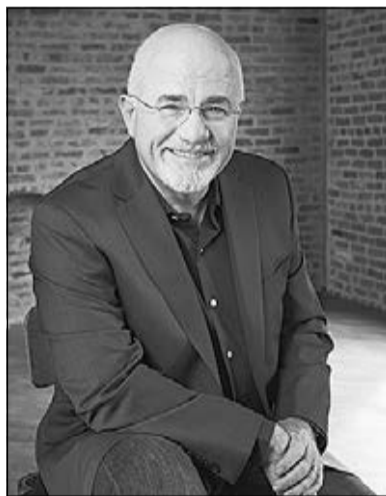

Another was disgust. I realized what I was doing was stupid. I was tired of living that way, and I made a conscious, purposeful decision that things were going to be different.

The third piece, and maybe the most important because it's connected to our spiritual walk, was contentment. We live in a society that's constantly having the idea that we'll be happier, or more successful, or more admired, if we'll only buy this or that product. We're constantly marketed to, and when we have this stuff in our faces day after day, we can become unsatisfied with just about every aspect of our lives. Don't let it drag you down. It's all just an illusion.

One of the things I did to combat this, was to start living on a strict, written, monthly budget. Also, I stopped going places where I was tempted to spend money. You shouldn't give a drunk a drink, right? So, don't put yourself in a bad situation when it comes to your behavior with money. If you go wandering through the mall without a specific plan, you'll lose every single time.

When you go to the store make a list of only the things you need. On top of that, take only enough cash with you to buy what you need. If you can walk in and back out without buying a bunch of stuff that wasn't on your list, it's a win. Every time you do this, it's another win and another step away from your old habits and in the right direction.

You can do this, Melissa. God bless you.

—Dave

OFF The Road With Jerry

This New Year's ad appeared in Sioux Valley News in 1995. This Power House Bar on South Main was home to a lot of dances and parties. The bar now is a decent clean bar called "Bushwackers" and only open on certain days, mostly on weekends.

Just down Main Street about a block was another bar and also a restaurant at many times. This was the VFW building and they had prime rib for the evening meal with champagne served at midnight and door prizes every 1/2 hour.

Another favorite good place in Canton was Hiawatha Golf Course on the eastside of town. This club also had the full package even with breakfast after the dance.

"Always in December" By: Emily Stone
Many years ago, Josie lost her parents on Christmas. Every December she writes a letter to them telling them "Missing you, always." On her way to the mailbox to mail the letter, she is stopped by a stranger colliding into her on his bicycle. The rider is Max, who is avoiding celebrating the holiday season for reasons of his own. They spend time together and some sparks fly, but for the next year they somehow always run into each other in different places they both happen to be. What are the odds? How will their story end?

Fair warning: This is a tear-jerker. I am sorry for the tears you will shed in advance, both happy and sad. No one warned me before I picked it up that I would be picking up pieces of my heart at the end. It is a tale of love and friendship that takes you on a beautiful journey along the way.
Emily Stone has two other Christmastime books available as well: "Love, Holly" & "One Last Gift."

All I Want for Christmas

The year may be coming to a close, but it doesn't look like our southern border is.
A year ago, my Republican colleagues and I made a commitment to secure the border and combat illegal immigration. While immigration is an important part of our country, the current system is broken and needs reform. An open border only increases the stress on our immigration processing systems. Recently, our southern border had its highest number of migrant encounters in a single day: 12,600. Because of these sustained high crossing numbers, U.S. Customs and Border Patrol has announced the closure of vital cross-border rail operations in Eagle Pass and El Paso, Texas, stalling essential trade between the U.S. and Mexico. The Biden administration's handling of the border crisis is now causing disruptions to our supply chain, just in time for Christmas. The bandages the administration is putting on the border are not solving the problem. They're only causing more stress on local communities across America.

The House has passed H.R. 2, the Secure the Border Act, with the strongest border policies ever advanced out of the House. It's time for the Senate and the administration to follow suit and pass strong border policies.
All I want for Christmas is a secure southern border, and I will do everything I can to ensure we provide necessary border security and make important reforms to our immigration process.
This year has been one for the history books. House Republicans have taken many steps to fulfill our commitment to America, but there is still work to be done. I wish you and your family a merry Christmas and I look forward to what we can accomplish in the new year!

January is Mental Health Wellness Month

We promote mental health awareness every January as National Mental Wellness Month. What better way to start the new year than with a reminder to recharge your mental health? According to WebMD, good mental health can positively affect your physical health. Being in a good mental state can keep you healthy and help prevent significant health conditions. Mental health conditions can also make dealing with a chronic illness more difficult. The mortality rate from cancer and heart disease is higher among people with depression or other mental health conditions.
Recent research by NAMI has found that as much as 46% of people who die by suicide had a known mental health condition. As much as 55% of adults with a mental illness receive no treatment, and 60% of youth with major depression also do not receive treatment. This is why it is crucial to maintain positive mental health and treat any poor mental health conditions. Taking care of our mental health can help us control or combat some of the physical health problems directly linked to mental health conditions. Some of the most common mental health conditions are PTSD, Depression, Panic Disorder, and Eating Disorders. People who suffer from these conditions are at a higher risk of suicide than those who do not.
The CDC describes mental health as our "emotional, psychological, and social well-being. It affects how we think, feel, and act. It also determines how we manage stress, relate to others, and make healthy choices." The Global Wellness Institute defines mental wellness as "an internal resource that helps us think, feel, connect, and function." The institute goes on to say that doing things that make you happy and feel good will increase your mental wellness, thus increasing your mental health. Some activities that may improve your mental wellness include physical activities, artistic activities, volunteering, enjoying time with friends and family, eating good food, and completing personal goals. Also, getting enough sleep, developing a positive attitude, and laughing can improve your mental wellness.

Brain Development Science Bolsters Calls for Quality Preschool in South Dakota

By Jackie Hendry
SDPB / For South Dakota News Watch

Raising a child looks different for every generation. Amy Elliott, chief clinical research officer at Avera Research Institute, understands how quickly new science and research can change ideas that used to be taken for granted. Her research focuses on child health and development.

"For example, drinking during pregnancy," she said. "That's something you don't have to go back too many generations — and that actually may have been something that had been encouraged. Now we know the children. For now, brain research is catching up with what early childhood educators have known for decades: the earliest years of a child's life can set the tone for lifelong learning outcomes.

State law requires kids are in school by age 6, though families have the option to start kindergarten if their child is 5 by Sept. 1 of the school year. Families might harness the potential of those earlier years through preschool, but South Dakota does not have a state-run or funded preschool program. Aside from federally funded programs like Head Start, privately run early childhood learning programs can profession because it truly is a profession. I mean, we're working with young children when the most brain development happens. So why shouldn't it be required that you need to understand how to work with young children at that time?"

Preschoolers 'need more than just love'

Nicole Weiss believes preschool providers owe families the highest-possible quality care for their children. She's the early learning director for the YMCA of Rapid City. While the state doesn't mandate credentials to teach preschool, her program does.

"Preschool's an interesting time effects that can have on fetal development, which is why there's the recommendation of no drinking during pregnancy."

In the same way, researchers are uncovering new information about brain development. Even the past five years have uncovered new information, Elliott said.

"We're able to look at the brain, for example, and look at brain development to a much greater degree than we were ever, ever before with those technologies," she explained.

That means researchers have a clearer picture of what parts of the brain develop, when they develop, and how rapidly. Elliott said when a child is born, its brain is about the fourth the size it will be when the child is an adult. By the child's first birthday, the brain will grow to half its eventual size.

"Some have even said in those first three months, the brain is increasing every day at almost a 1% capacity — every day," said Elliott. "Millions of connections being formed in a very short amount of time, much more rapid development than is seen at any other time period in life. So the first year of life and then the first five years are really what we would refer to as very critical time periods for brain development."

For instance, research has determined that the foundations for language development are set in a child's brain by age 3.

"Now you can definitely learn language after that, but it's a lot more difficult," Elliott said. "We know there's a critical time period where different sounds — because different languages have different sounds — are getting integrated within and becoming part of how that brain is wired."

Lifelong learning ability established in early childhood

Elliott expects the next decade of research to demonstrate similar findings for reading, math and social development in vary dramatically in quality.

Preschool standards 'really random in South Dakota'

Janessa Bixel is executive director of the South Dakota Association for the Education of Young Children. It's a statewide chapter of a national professional organization that provides resources for early childhood educators, families and communities. She has more than 20 years of experience in early childhood education, including in Head Start programs in various states.

"When you're in Alaska or Kansas or New Hampshire or South Dakota — which are some of the places I've lived — those Head Start standards are the same, basically, in all of those states," she said. "When you get outside of Head Start, it's really random in South Dakota. You can open a preschool and you don't even have to be regulated in any way in the state."

In fact, South Dakota is one of a handful of states in the country without a state-funded program or official standards to measure the quality of private programs. There have been some efforts from groups like the School Administrators of South Dakota to create early learning guides, but they don't hold the weight of regulatory standards.

There are no state-required credentials for preschool teachers either.

Part of Bixel's work includes expanding opportunities for early learning educators in a state where public policy hasn't caught up with the importance research puts on the field.

"I would love to see an apprenticeship program started in South Dakota for early childhood educators," she said. "There are some states doing that right now and it seems like it could be an untapped area to support this field and really help to elevate it as a

The lodge was organized April 27, 1968, and at their opening meeting there were 117 members. The first election of officers included: President Manfred Hill, Vice President Gordon Grane; Counselor Roy Larsgaard; Secretary Sigvor Overby; Treasurer Allen Ulrickson, and Social Director Lee Twedt. Presently the lodge still has three of the original charter members with continuous membership. They are: Delores Cleveland, Joann Eidsheim and Ivona Sandness. Current life members with continuous membership are: Richard Hill and Helen Rowe.

The lodge celebrated their 55th Anniversary at the Lodge's Christmas luncheon on Saturday, December 9, 2023 at the Kennedy Mansion in Canton. It was a catered luncheon with Scandinavian pastries. The guest speaker was Sherry Stilley, Zone 6 Director of South Dakota. Richard Hill was presented an award for 50 years of continuous membership by Dave Holter. We concluded our program with the singing of Christmas carols.

But without a state requirement, it's up to private entities to decide what level of training their staff needs.

Gregory's organization also administers a program called Starting Strong, a scholarship program funded by the John T. Vucurevich Foundation to allow disadvantaged families the opportunity to afford preschool. The benefits ripple beyond children in the Starting Strong program, she said.

"That kindergarten teacher is going to teach to the child with the most needs because that's where all that attention needs to go," Gregory said. "If those children can come in ready to learn, then it benefits all the children in that kindergarten class."

Elliott, Avera's chief clinical research officer, believes the data show the same benefits to preschool that educators have experienced firsthand.

"Pre-K teaches kids so many things, and sometimes I think the things that are taught — the most important — are on the behavioral side," she said. "There shouldn't be pressure that kids have to be able to read or do those things before school. But it's good for them to be exposed to letters and to colors and to sounds and to like looking at books."

Because research on child development is evolving so rapidly, Elliott understands it can take time for the public — and policy — to catch up. She returns to the example of drinking during pregnancy.

"People will say, 'Well, I think things turned out just fine.' The one thing I would like to say is, that's what science is supposed to do for us. It's supposed to help us raise the next generation better than the previous one."

By Virginia Olson

For the seventh year, the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce has recognized organizations and individuals who made a significant contribution to the community at its annual meeting and awards banquet at the Meadow Barn December 7.

This year's 2023 recipients were: Small Business of the Year, Neighborhood Dental - Harrisburg; Large Business of the Year, Van Buskirk Companies; and Citizen of the Year, Harrisburg Superintendent Tim Graf.

"These awards were created seven years ago to recognize organizations and individuals who have made a significant contribution to our community through their excellence in professional and community leadership," said Adrienne McKeown, Chairman of the Board for the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce.

Every chamber business and citizen in Harrisburg and its surrounding area is eligible for this award, except the officers and directors of the Harrisburg together to achieve goals. His calm yet decisive demeanor has steadied many community-beneficial projects that may not otherwise have been possible."

The Citizen of the Year award means a lot to Graf. "I am just very blessed to be in a great community, doing what I do, with an incredible families to bring two housing developments to our community demonstrating their strong belief that building communities and relationships go hand-in-hand."

Members of the Van Buskirk team have also served on a multitude of volunteer boards and supported numerous charities throughout the metro area.

VBC was established in 1971 by Myron Van Buskirk and remains a family operated business today. Through the years, leadership and integrity have defined the company.

Small Business of the Year – Neighborhood Dental

"Neighborhood Dental has been a member of the Harrisburg business community for several years now," said McKeown. "And like the community, their business had continued to grow over the years. This, in turn, led to investing in a new location and additional staff."

McKeown lauded Neighborhood Dental's community involvement.

"The dental office has become an active partner with the Harrisburg School District's internship program. It has retained high-caliber interns who later became employees filling staffing needs. In addition, team members volunteer their time speaking at middle and elementary school career exploration days as well as hosting food drives and volunteering at the Banquet. Neighborhood Dental also used its social media presence to recognize other small businesses here in Harrisburg through their Small Business Shout Out campaign on Facebook. Neighborhood Dental is a business that brings a smile to your face."

Chamber of Commerce. The small business recipients have 25 or fewer employees and the large business recipients have more than 25 employees. Anyone in the community can submit a nomination. Award recipients are chosen by the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors.

Harrisburg Superintendent Tim Graf - Citizen of the Year

Tim Graf has made his mark in Harrisburg. The last four years he has led the school district through unmatched growth. Today there are now 6100 students. With growth has come new schools. Graf has overseen the construction and opening of Adventure Elementary, the Freshman Academy and Harrisburg East Middle School. Next year the district will open Elementary #8 in southern Harrisburg as well see the completion of the remodel project of Harrisburg South Middle school.

Mr. Graf is noted for being student-centered, innovative, a good steward of public dollars and collaborative with community officials. He has worked cooperatively with the City of Harrisburg and Lincoln County on numerous projects. In addition, he is a member of the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce.

When Mr. Graf arrived in Harrisburg, he made it a goal to create the Harrisburg Education Foundation. The Foundation is a non-profit organization that seeks donations towards the support and advancement of education.

Graf is recognized as a servant leader who advocates for others and listens with an open mind and heart.

Former School Board member Amber Ellingsen believes there is a great amount of respect for Graf and the work he has done for the Harrisburg School District.

County Register of Deeds. This waiver would run with the land.
(d) Any such waivers as set forth in Sections 2 (a), (b) and (c) are void if the pipeline fails to obtain the necessary permit(s) and authorization from the South Dakota Public Utilities Commission or other applicable federal agency for the construction of such Transmission Pipeline within five (5) years after the effective date of the waiver. This language shall be set forth in all waivers filed pursuant to Section 2 (a) (b) or (c).

Any request to withhold such information from public examination or disclosure shall include the statutory basis for such claimed exemption. A failure to identify confidential information in the application may result in the Township treating such information as a public record.
8. Should Applicant's application to the PUC for a permit to construct, maintain, and operate a new Transmission Pipeline along, over, or across land in the jurisdiction of Canton Township be denied, Applicant's application pursuant to this Article will be denied as moot.

Section 3. The requirements of this Ordinance and any setback required shall be binding upon the Applicant's heirs, successors, assigns and agents.
Section 4. The provisions of this Ordinance are severable. If any provision of this Ordinance or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is held to be invalid, such invalidity shall not affect other provisions or applications of this Ordinance that can be given effect without the invalid provision or application.

KILLING the carbon pipeline will HURT EVERY South Dakotan
ProtectSDag.com

Low carbon ethanol and sustainable aviation fuel will bring billions of dollars and thousands of jobs to our state — if we permit it.

Here's the catch — both fuels require carbon pipelines.

South Dakota can't afford to miss out on this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to revolutionize agriculture — our state's #1 industry.

Killing the carbon pipeline would be a huge mistake that would damage our ag economy, limit our future and hurt every South Dakotan.
