Bernice Torberson Celebrates 100th Birthday

By: Kala Hazelhoff

Bernice (Chaon) Torberson recently celebrated her 100th birthday. Her family hosted an open house for Bernice in October. Twins Logan and Miles McLaughlin, grandsons to Bernice's nephew Jerry Chaon, were special guests. They were the first set of twins born into the Chaon family since Bernice and Eunice were born in 1923. On her birthday, Countryside Assisted Living joined the family in hosting a party for the residents to celebrate Bernice. She was presented with a beautiful, framed certificate honoring her induction into the "South Dakota Century Club."

On December 5th, 1923, Bernice and her twin sister Eunice were born to parents August (Gus) and Tina Chaon. They also had three older brothers: Fenton, Glenn, and Leslie (Hap.) The family lived in Canton. Tina was a stay-at-home mom and sewed multiple outfits for the girls. Gus butchered for farmers, worked at the meat locker, creamery, and sold Rawleigh products on the side. Gus was also a substitute mail carrier and if he had a lot of catalogs or packages to deliver, Bernice and Eunice would join him. These times were precious to the girls, as they did not always have much time with their father while he was busy working to provide for his family.

The twins very rarely had a babysitter, but Bernice remembers Fenton babysitting one time. He told them to put on their pajamas and then sat them in the spare tire of his coupe while he drove to a friend's house. Hap also babysat them, but he told them if they put their pajamas on and went to bed, he would reward them the next morning with bubble gum. After this bribery, Hap would go to the shack out back and play cards with his friends. Bernice said there was no bubble gum the next morning, but the idea of enjoying such a treat made them obey his orders to go to bed. Later, the girls would use the shack in the backyard for a playhouse.

The Chaon family attended meetings in the Chautauqua Building. They would take a picnic dinner along to eat after the meetings. "When I was about 3- or 4-years old Mama had just made us each a blue and tan polka dot dress. I got thirsty so I left the meeting to go to the car for a glass (no plastic or paper then.) I reached for a glass, which was broken, and I cut my finger. There was nothing to wipe my finger on but my new polka dot dress. I found out later that was a No, No!"

The twins enjoyed attending 4-H camp in Lennox. "The girls stayed in a big tent south of the school, and the boys on the west side. We ate, had classes, and used the rest rooms in the school. We slept on the ground. A big load of straw was put in the center of the tent. The kids divided the straw to make beds. We covered the straw with our blankets. We did not like the water to drink. On our free time we went with the VanBockern kids to their aunt's place in Lennox. They had a well and we would bring back water in a gallon syrup pail to drink. The camp had a newspaper where kids voted on certain things. Bernice Chaon and Gene Paulson were voted as "the kids with the prettiest teeth."

Bernice married Clifford Torberson on March 15, 1942, at the Little Brown Church in Nashua, Iowa. Honeymoon plans were to go to Washington, D.C. to see the cherry blossoms in bloom, but those plans were cancelled because of gas rationing, as it was the months following Pearl Harbor.

Clifford and Bernice farmed until retirement. They had four children: Leonard, Suzanne, Carroll, and Brian. Clifford and Bernice were married for 63 years before Clifford died in November of 2005. Leonard, Suzanne, and Brian have all passed away. Bernice moved to Mitchell in 2016 to be closer to her son Carroll. She has sixteen grandchildren and is expecting her 21st great-grandchild.

In the summer of 2017, at the age of 93 1/2, Bernice took a two-week trip to Israel, accompanied by Suzanne, Larry, Carroll, and Joyce. They also visited Petra in Jordan, one of the Seven Wonders of the World.

Hobbies she has enjoyed over the years are knitting, needlework, and collecting teapots. You can find her teapot collection at the Tea Museum in Tea, SD. She made over 1,000 quilts and donated them to various missions. Clifford and Bernice found themselves getting caught up in the square-dancing craze of the 1960's, so she sewed them matching outfits. She also enjoyed cake decorating and baking over the years as well. Although she is French, Bernice learned how to make many Norwegian specialties like lefse, krumkake, and fattigmann. She was still baking cookies up until a year ago when she moved out of her apartment into an assisted living facility. Bernice also organized and typed up a complete index for the Lincoln County History book after it was published and helped index all the students from rural schools in Lincoln County.

When asked about the secret to her longevity and advice to young people she responded: "Read your Bible. God has blessed me. I can't see or hear well anymore, but I am so happy that I have my mind."

Batter Up Bakery

By: Kala Hazelhoff

Thirteen years ago, Jen Skiles was a new nurse who enjoyed watching baking or cake shows as a stress reliever. Around the same time, her best friend was planning her wedding and requested Skiles make her wedding cake. She thought "how hard can it be?" Over the years she would make a cake here and there for friends and family. Sometimes she would see a new show with different techniques she wanted to try, and her love of baking grew from there. Skiles loves being able to have a creative outlet, whether that be with baking or arts and crafts. She loves to find new techniques, skills, flavors, and combinations to try. When time allows, she loves to try new recipes.

Her husband Shane and herself have 3 children: Easton (11), Sullivan (9), and Emersyn (3.) Shane and Jen both graduated from Canton High School and have continued to keep close ties with the school. Shane is a football coach and Jen is on the school board and K12 Foundation. Shane also has a business in Canton, "Dakota Fertilizer and Chemical."

It wasn't until about 2.5 years ago that she seriously considered making her hobby into an actual business. The years of "you should make this a business" from her friends and family always at the back of her mind. She found that twelve-hour shifts were getting harder for her to pick up in Sioux Falls around her family's busy schedule, so she acquired to the "stay-at-home" mom life. She continued to pick up shifts as her schedule would allow but found she could also use the flexible daytime hours to bake. She feels it has been the greatest blessing to be home with her kids while beginning a new adventure.

Anyone who knows the Skiles family will know that they are a huge baseball family. When Skiles was trying to come up with a witty play on words for the name of her baking business, she thought "Batter Up Bakery" represented her family and baking well. Both Shane and Jen grew up playing it, they watch the sport year-round, and their kids play year-round.

For now, Skiles offers cakes, cupcakes, and cookie cakes. She wanted to start with her strengths and with what she knows to start things off the right way. "If I try to do too much too soon, I'll lose sight of the joy this brings and forget the real reasons why I began this business in the first place."

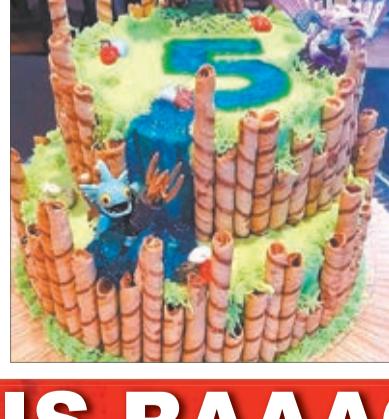

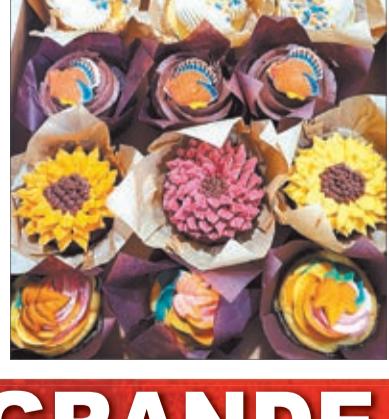

Within the next year, she is hopeful to branch out and offer homemade breads and rolls. Sometimes, she works on a cake for over twelve hours and tries to balance out the cost vs. time, while making it affordable for customers. Orders will be for delivery only. Skiles is grateful for the support she has already received from the community. "I've been so inspired by the other bakers in town. There are so many incredibly talented women in Canton and their work has inspired me to keep going with mine."

Veterans Encouraged to Use an Accredited Agent

Our veterans have shouldered the burden of our defense. They have displayed extraordinary strength and resilience in the face of adversity to protect the freedoms that we enjoy as Americans.

When our men and women return home after their tour of duty, we can show our gratitude by serving them. They must know that there are resources to help them. Veterans service officers provide a service, at no cost, to assist veterans in applying for benefits.

The recently passed PACT Act expands health care and benefits for toxic exposures and will lead to more veterans filing disability claims. As a nation we should ensure they don't face needless obstacles in their path. We need to make certain that those who assist veterans do not take advantage of them or defraud the government. That's why it's so vitally important that veterans are aware of and are properly represented by accredited individuals and institutions when seeking VA benefits.

We encourage all veterans to work with their county and tribal veterans service officer, or an accredited representative of a veterans service organization when determining how to proceed with claims. Veterans should not share their logins, passwords, or bank account information with an unaccredited representative.

It is illegal for unaccredited agents to prepare, present, or file claims on behalf of veterans.

Veterans don't need unaccredited consultants who have no oversight of their quality, accuracy, or predatory practices.

I'm proud of the resources that accredited representatives like the South Dakota Department of Veterans Affairs and our partners, the county and tribal veterans service officers, provide at no cost.

Our department exists for one clear purpose: to repay our nation's debt of gratitude to its veterans every day. We are serving America's veterans by providing them timely access to benefits and quality care from the day they first take their oaths of allegiance until the day they are laid to rest.

Much of our team of experts have worn the boots, walked the trenches, conducted maneuvers, commanded troops, sustained missions, and protected our freedoms. They are veterans that have borne the battle and are committed to ensure that our heroes receive the highest quality of services possible. Again, there is no charge for the services they provide our veterans in obtaining their benefits.

To reach our SDDVA team, please call 605.333.6869. To locate a county or tribal veterans service officer, please visit: <https://vetaffairs.sd.gov/veteranserviceofficers/locatevso.aspx>.

America's veterans are the pride of our nation. They have fought our wars, defended our shores, and kept us free. At the end of each day, our true measure of success will be the timeliness, the quality, and the consistency of the services and support we provide.

Now, more than ever, we need to continue to deliver on our promise to take care of our veterans. Let's keep our sleeves rolled up and work together to ensure our veterans have a successful journey after they return home.

A Season For Giving—And Supporting The Arts Industry

Would you like to present holiday gifts that are wonderfully original, totally appreciated, perfectly unique—and support a vital element of our state's economy? Give the work of South Dakota artists! Choose handmade work created by one of our artisans, a print or painting by a South Dakota artist, or tickets to a special performance—all gifts that will be enjoyed throughout the year. Memberships to local arts and cultural organizations are gifts that keep on giving—to both the recipient and the community.

You'll also be giving a gift that keeps South Dakota economically strong.

Arts & Economic Prosperity 6 (AEP6), an economic and social impact study from Americans for the Arts, was recently released showing $363 million in annual economic activity generated by the arts and culture industry across South Dakota.

That economic activity also supported 6,054 full-time jobs in 2022 and generated nearly $52 million in local, state and federal government revenue. And South Dakota audiences spent extra dollars around arts events, benefiting local merchants, restaurants and lodging facilities.

Shopping for creative gifts brings you in direct contact with the people who are the South Dakota arts industry. Hometown bookstores promote our state's writers, telling tales of the past or breaking new ground with exciting fiction or poetry. Museum gift shops are perfect spots to find South Dakota artists' work, in an incredible range of prices, sizes, colors and subject matter. Galleries, both public and private, show and sell South Dakota visual arts. You can find furniture, sculpture, prints, drawings and notecards created here by your neighbors. And don't forget albums and holiday performances by South Dakota musicians.

Giving the gift of South Dakota art helps make South Dakota a place where artists are encouraged and creative enterprise succeeds. You can enhance our cultural heritage, advance the appreciation of the arts, spark new ideas for the recipient and strengthen our state's economy. That's quite an impactful holiday gift!

The Boyce Museum, now stored in the downstairs of the Canton Public Library, continues to share its secrets of local history as a "Rotating Museum." Items are rotated from the downstairs of the five display cases at the entrance of the library approximately every three to four months. The core collection of the Canton museum was given to the City of Canton in 1933 by Earl M. Boyce, an early settler in the Canton area. Many others have donated items to the museum since its establishment.

The board after considerable discussion, decided to call in their architect to discuss with him, various trains of thought that came up at the meeting. Some of the suggestions board members brought up for consideration was the construction of a new bandroom and lunchroom to be built out of capital outlay funds.

Another proposal was to convert one of the two elementary schools into a Junior High and use the other elementary schools for that purpose. The one building would house students from Kindergarten through grade five and the other building would be used to educate students in grade six through eight.

The First of Two Special Christmas Editions

I don't know how "special" wrote for Christmas 2022. this Christmas poem is that you are about to read. Just the fact that I wrote it should tell you something. It was inspired by a phone conversation I recently had. Near the end of it I said "I'll let you go and let you know." I've forgotten what the "let you know" part was all about but the person on the other end then replied "Hey, that rhymes! You should include that in one of your poems."

Well, as soon our conversation had ended I put pen to paper and a few minutes later the following poem was completed. I don't think I've ever written one so quickly. Usually I end up making a lot of changes and sometimes I just throw them away because they really stink (and some of you may say that about this one). Anyway, I kind of like it and its definitely better than the one I

Before I forget, mark Sunday, December 17 on your calendars for a farewell, last hurrah for Tim and Kalli Blackstone at the Canton Barn. This event will run 2:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. The music will be provided by Crabgrass Crew from Sioux Falls.

The Blackstone have done some truly remarkable things for our community over the years and I hope everyone comes out to thank them personally for everything they've done to put Canton on the map. There will also be a meet and greet with the new owners. Please check out the ad in this issue for more details on this free event.

So, drum roll please. Here is my Christmas gift/poem for all you readers of my column and the Sioux Valley News. Happy reading and remember...

It's Christmas Time

I'll let you go and let you know if we get snow
at Christmas time

It could be coming as we be humming or possibly strumming
an old Christmas tune

So, hitch up that sleigh and be on your way
it will be OK
at Christmas time

Boys and girls will be happy
so will ma and old pappy
I don't mean to be sappy
But I love Christmas time

Sing of holly and ivy but don't get to lively and don't forget to call Riley
at Christmas time

It was the birth of a child so meek and so mild there's no reason to get wild
at Christmas time

Be with family and friends where the love never ends and forget modern trends
at Christmas time

So, let's put up the tree and sing fa la la lee and then we'll decree
it's Christmas time

We have so much to do there's no time to feel blue send a card to Aunt Sue
it's Christmas time

By gosh and by golly did you invite cousin Mollie and how about Polly
it's Christmas time

And we should all help poor don't turn them away from your door and think of those fighting some war
at Christmas time

Pray for peace and good cheer to all far and near there should be nothing to fear
at Christmas time

And may that star shine so bright on that long silent night and hold loved one tight
at Christmas time

It only comes once a year and as it draws near it will all be made clear
at Christmas time

Merry Christmas to all who read this and to all a good night.

Peace and love

Windmill Of My Mind

by Margaret Schultz

Last year we did very little in the way of decorating for Christmas. In November, I had a procedure done which kept me from being able to raise my left arm and was told "no decorating the Christmas tree". In addition to that, we were leaving on the sixteenth to attend the wedding of our grandson, who lives in Frisco, Texas and was marrying a Texas girl. So, this year, it has been especially fun to decorate and listen to lots of Christmas music, looking forward to the season and all that it brings.

Years ago, when I still worked at the school, I wrote a poem that pretty much sums up how I'm feeling this year.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

I have the Christmas Spirit! It swells within my heart;
Surging from my very depths, it fills my every part.
The lights, the colors, the music, all thrill my very soul,
Bandaging my wounded-ness and making me feel whole.
I may be busy working, at home or at the school,
When suddenly I want to laugh and make myself a fool.
It comes from God...or else from where? To question it, I shall not dare.
I only know that I feel joy, and full of many shivers,
And often when I sing a carol, my voice in full of quivers.
I realize that there are those whose hearts are sad and broken,
And wish that I could take their hurt, as love's most worthy token.
Could I but give this joy to them would be the utmost giving.
T'would greatly enhance my own joy, and make life more worth living.
But joy can come from God alone, and not from such as I,
As was proclaimed so long ago, by angels from on high.
So let us seek the Christ of Christmas, in that humble, lowly manger,
And find that His desire is to no longer be a stranger.
He will come to you, as He's come to me, unworthy though I am,
And wrap His Spirit Arms around you – Oh, the comfort of the Lamb!

Having a Great Christmas on a Tight Budget

By Jade Warshaw

It's the most wonderful—and most expensive—time of the year! And if you're like so many others who are struggling to get out of debt, this season can cause a lot of stress and completely derail your money goals. But it doesn't have to, and you can still have a meaningful holiday season while sticking to your budget and knocking out that debt.

Listen, I've been there. At one point, my husband and I had $460,000 in debt, so I know the struggle firsthand. Back in the day, our Christmases looked a lot different than they do now that we're debt-free. But that doesn't mean they weren't special or fun (because I'm going to make something fun no matter what). So here are my best tips for having a great Christmas on a tight budget.

Actually have a budget

Creating a fresh budget each month is one of the biggest keys to success on your debt-free journey, and it's also the key to keeping your holiday spending in check. I suggest making a zero-based budget, which just means you give every dollar you earn an assignment. If you haven't made a budget for this month yet, this is your sign to download a free budgeting app (I personally recommend EveryDollar) and write down exactly how much you're spending on what—and stick to it.

And as tempting as it might be, don't take on more debt by charging something or paying in installments just so you can get the more expensive gifts that you or your family might want. Trust me, your January self will thank you!

Don't try to do "the most"

If you look at your budget and realize all your usual holiday traditions will mess with the progress you've made, I'm giving you permission to do the least. I'm talking less Secret Santa exchanges, less side dishes and less travel. Seriously. Sometimes doing the least will keep you the most on track with your money.

This goes for gifts too. Now's the time to think outside the box and remember that a great gift doesn't have to be over the top. Can you give the gift of quality time? Can you put your baking skills to work? What about a sweet family photo in a nice frame that's probably a lot more special to Grandma than a bunch of "stuff"?

Dave Says: It's a Credit Card Addiction

Dear Dave,

I think my mother-in-law has a serious credit card problem. She can't afford stuff, but she shops anyway, chalks up more and more debt, acquires more credit cards, and thinks she'll pay for it all later somehow.

Her ex-husband has bailed her out a few times, but he's unwilling to help anymore.

My wife and I, and my wife's sister, want to address this issue, but we're all worried about her reaction, and we don't know where to start. Do you have any advice?

Randall

Dear Randall,

First, everyone involved should understand they're likely to receive an angry response from this lady if she's confronted over her actions. Sometimes people get ticked off when they hear the truth, especially when it's connected to their own misbehavior. It may even be a good idea for your wife and her sister to get some advice from a family counselor beforehand. Really, what we're talking about here is an intervention.

Also, you need to stay out of the discussion. This is something for her daughters to handle. Support your wife and her sister through it all, but if you're in there asking questions and probing around, you're liable to come off as the evil son-in-law. And you folks don't need to add any more problems to the mix.

They need to sit down with her in a quiet setting, one where there are no interruptions, no television and no one else. Start with the fact that they love her and care about her deeply. That's very important in a situation like this. But they also have to walk through what's really going on, and let her know they're tired of watching her destroy herself, and her finances, with her irresponsible behavior.

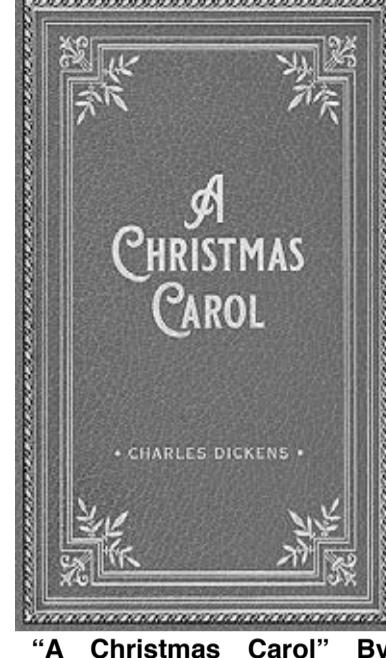

If she had a drinking problem, you'd want to try to make her see how alcohol was hurting her and the relationships she has with her family. In this case, she basically has a credit card addiction. And it's wreaking havoc on her financial well-being and people who care about her.

So, show as much love and understanding as possible. But someone needs to say something soon.

"A Christmas Carol" By: Charles Dickens

"A Christmas Carol" is one of my favorite books. I am sure most of you are familiar with the story of the curmudgeonly man, Scrooge, who is visited by three spirits on Christmas Eve and is transformed into a kinder man. I love the prose, the characters, and the many lessons the story holds. I would suggest snuggling up with it as the warm glow of a Christmas tree surrounds you. I can't leave it out at Christmastime, so I decided instead of doing a review that has been done many times, I would mention some facts I have researched along the way.

One-hundred and eighty years ago, Charles Dickens sat down to write "A Christmas Carol." Little did he know the story would go on to be a favorite of readers everywhere for years to come. Dickens wrote it in only 6 weeks. He was feeling pressure from his publishers to draft a novel because his most recent work at the time, "Martin Chuzzlewit" had flopped. His publishers were not supportive of his idea about writing a Christmas novel and refused to pay for any of the fees that came along with publishing. So, Dickens paid the rest himself. He did not make very much money on the first edition, paying extra from his own pocket for special gold gilded pages and a hardcover binding.

"A Christmas Carol" released on December 19th, 1843. Six thousand copies were printed and sold out by Christmas Eve. When it was an instant success and Dickens moved to a rival publishing house, his publishers soon regretted their discouraging attitude. The novella was such a success that only a month after its release, Dickens found himself in a legal battle with another publisher over pirated copies. Since the novella was published, it has never been out of print. If you were to buy a copy of the first edition today, you could pay up to $60,000, based on the condition. It has inspired many movies, plays and other books. My personal favorite is "The Muppet Christmas Carol" starring Michael Caine.

Dickens wrote the story to highlight the British attitudes towards poverty. Dickens himself was forced to drop out of school at an early age to help support his family. He worked at a factory gluing labels on pots of boot blackening 10 hours a day, experiencing first-hand the harsh treatment and conditions of the lower class. He wanted to do something to help if he could, which happened to be writing one of the most beloved stories of all time. After its success, Dickens even performed live readings of the book. If only I could go back in time!

I hope this information was interesting to other lovers of this novella by Dickens. As Scrooge says towards the end of the story, I hope you will all honor Christmas in your heart and try to keep it all the year.

OFF The Road With Jerry

This Christmas scene was down town for the annual prize drawing thru the pre Christmas season. This is Rick Meister of Canton Chamber of Commerce, handing a prize to Chris Erikson of Canton. This was in 1986.

These strange Little urchins or whatever they are, are in a 1988 Optimist parade in down town Canton. The parades were quite large and other towns traveled here with floats to take part.

This was the Optimist Club Parade float. Even though the Optimist voted for best floats, this didn't seem to matter much. Speaking of Optimist, we lost some of the best long time members and founder of this youth club group. Lynda and John Stanley passed away in October. We will always miss them and remember all the good things they taught us. This old photo was back in 1988.

Hello again to all in District 16, So here we are. Property owners in South Dakota remain in an information war with the CO2 pipeline companies and unfortunately some in the ethanol industry.

Property owners have a right to be concerned about this project. It doesn't mean they are against ethanol. They are just for property rights.

Here's 10 reasons for concern off the top of my head:

1) Many don't trust out of state companies with questionable foreign investors.

2) These companies are incentivized by government subsidies (your taxpayer money) to the tune of billions of potential dollars for their gain, who have millions at their disposal to fight their opposition with a false narrative.

3) Property owners don't want the company to control--in perpetuity--an easement which can be sold to anyone--in the U.S. or elsewhere.

4) The concern that if these pipelines, which may have CO2 flowing at a rate of @2200 psi, could cause injury and death. (CO2 is an asphyxiant.)

5) This project is based on the premise that CO2--which comprises .04% of our atmosphere, needs to be sequestered because of climate change. At .02% plant life suffers.

6) Farmers, including one that contacted me today, are being denied insurance coverage on a pipeline through their property carrying CO2 which is deemed a 'pollutant' that puts him at risk.

7) Other options exist for the ethanol companies, such as on-site capture of CO2 used in methanol production--which could be very profitable.

8) @ 160 property owners in the state of South Dakota were served condemnation papers by Summit Carbon Solutions, which have cost them an enormous amount of money, time, and peace of mind. If this was so great, why aren't they signing?

9) Eminent domain is reserved for a public use, not a private entity for private gain.

10) Where does this end? The chipping away of our individual freedoms will not stop if this is allowed.

There are many more I could list. Let me assure you: Just because property owners and farmers are concerned with the CO2 pipeline ...does NOT mean they are against ethanol. But it has sure felt like ethanol is against them.

PROPERTY OWNERS WANT ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT, THEY WANT ETHANOL, BUT THEY DON'T WANT TO GIVE UP THEIR PERSONAL PROPERTY RIGHTS TO MAKE THAT HAPPEN. IF THEY DO, MANY OF THEM FEAR IT WILL NOT BE THE LAST TIME.

Friends, this is way bigger than a CO2 pipeline. What will be next? Why can't the ethanol companies work WITH the property owners and support them to get this figured out? What is really behind this boondoggle?

I am inviting you to come to a PUBLIC forum sponsored by the Free Soil Coalition, an organization with ties to the Heartland of America. Speakers include rancher/radio personality Trent Loos, former Iowa Congressman Steve King, and others who will give the whole story behind the CO2 pipelines, what can be done for ethanol, and how we can march forward TOGETHER instead of fighting and undermining the very people who put food on our tables. This event will be at Gate City, 47947 W 5th St., Canton on Monday, Dec. 18, 7:00 p.m. I look forward to seeing you there.

Merry Christmas and blessings,
Representative Karla Lems

Hohman Announces Candidacy for District 16 State Senate

CANTON—Eric Hohman today announced his candidacy as a Republican to represent District 16 in the South Dakota State Senate. Raised in southeast South Dakota, Hohman and his family have been active in Lincoln, Union and Turner counties for generations. Hohman is eager to meet area voters and is ready to hit the ground running in Pierre to advocate for the people of District 16.

"District 16 is a microcosm of our South Dakota. With rural and urban needs, industrial and agricultural needs, we need a state senator who reflects our region's values and can listen to the needs of the constituents," said Hohman. "I'm the proven leader most able to advocate for agriculture, schools, small towns, rural values, and fight against special interests that could disrupt our way of life."

Eric and his wife, Mona, have two adult children—Andy and Rachel—and six grandchildren who all reside in the Canton School District. He graduated from Canton High School and earned a bachelor's degree in Agricultural Business and Commercial Economics from South Dakota State University as well as a master's degree in Business Administration from the University of South Dakota.

"South Dakota has given my family and I so much. We are truly blessed," said Hohman. "I look forward to giving back by representing my neighbors with thoughtful, principled, and conservative leadership. Now is my time to give back, and I humbly ask the voters of District 16 for their support in the 2024 election."

Hohman's parents—Dr. Paul and Roz Hohman—instilled in him a duty of giving back to the community. Eric served on the Canton School Board and was previously active with the Forest Hill Cemetery Board, the Canton Library Board, District 16 includes the majority of Lincoln, Turner and Union counties. The Republican primary election is Tuesday, June 4, 2024, and the general election is Tuesday, Nov. 5, 2024.

SCHOLARSHIPS NOW AVAILABLE FOR RETAIL, HOSPITALITY, AND TRADE STUDENTS

PIERRE (SD) — Careers in retail, hospitality and trades are in high demand in South Dakota. The South Dakota Retailers Association is offering scholarships to help students reach their goal of entering those fields. Students may apply online at sdra.org/scholarships.

The Retailers Association scholarship program is designed to assist students studying for a career as an owner, manager, or employee in a wide range of occupations. To be eligible for consideration, applicants must be currently enrolled or plan to enroll in a retail, hospitality, or trade course of study at a university, technical college, or trade school in the fall of 2024.

In 2023, the association awarded funds to six students in amounts ranging from $2,100 to $3,500. Since the program was launched in 1992, the Retailers Association has awarded 275 scholarships, totaling nearly $238,000.

By investing in the next generation of aspiring business leaders, the the Sioux Empire Red Cross Board and treasurer of the Canton Lutheran Church. He currently is active with the Jim and Caroline Deinema Canton Community Foundation, the Lutheran Church Foundation and the Depot.

During his time owning the Sioux Valley newspaper and working in the banking industry, Hohman learned the importance of accessibility, independence, transparency, honesty and keeping true to your word. To Hohman, these are crucial for long-lasting relationships. As a state senator, Eric will be a leader District 16 can be proud of because he is committed to these same principles as an elected public official.

The District 16 Senate seat will be vacated by longtime public servant Jim Bolin, who is term-limited and unable to seek re-election to the State Senate. Hohman is grateful for Senator Bolin's leadership in the Legislature and passion for public service.

District 16 includes the majority of Lincoln, Turner and Union counties. The Republican primary election is Tuesday, June 4, 2024, and the general election is Tuesday, Nov. 5, 2024.

Retailers Association aims to continue their mission of fostering strong communities within South Dakota.

"Every community in South Dakota is eager to attract people who want careers in retail, hospitality and trade businesses," said Nathan Sanderson, the association's Executive Director. "Our scholarship program can help launch those individuals on a rewarding career path. Investing a few minutes to apply could result in a scholarship award of $2,000 or more."

If you know a student in South Dakota who could use a hand reaching their goals, South Dakota Retailers want to help them succeed in our state!

Visit sdra.org/scholarships to download the application and view the full eligibility guidelines, or call (605) 224-5050 for information. Submission deadline is Tuesday, April 23, 2024.

Richard Vasgaard has announced his intention to seek the District 16 House of Representative vacant seat in the South Dakota State Legislature.

The Big Three

BIG Update

The Environmental Protection Agency's proposed emission standards would essentially require two-thirds of all new vehicles to be electric by 2032. The Biden Administration is pushing its green agenda and forcing America to further rely on China for batteries.

This emission mandate will force consumers to buy electric vehicles, which are more expensive, have more issues, and are less reliable than automobiles with internal combustion engines. Electric vehicles are not practical for many South Dakotans who want to have options when it comes to choosing a vehicle.

The Biden Administration hasn't built a single EV charging station nationwide since President Biden took office. Implementation of this policy would be faulty and impractical. This week, House Republicans passed the CARS Act to block this overreaching mandate and protect consumer choice.

BIG Idea

The National Park Service (NPS) and Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) create Air Tour Management Plans for commercial air tours over national parks. The recently proposed plan for Mount Rushmore and the Badlands is the most restrictive plan in the nation.

Earlier this week, I called on the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Interior, Environment, and Related Agencies to hold field hearings to learn about the challenges faced by tribal law enforcement in the Great Plains.

Tribal law enforcement agencies are facing a lack of resources, not enough officers, and slow response times. Many tribes have issued States of Emergency on their reservations because of increased crime rates and insufficient law enforcement.

The boys basketball team is off to a good start with a win over EPJ last Thursday but have a couple tough games coming up next week with Dakota Valley who is on some 56 game win streak on Friday then Lennox on Monday followed by Alcester-Hudson Tuesday to take them to the Christmas break. I drove the bus down to EPJ and I thought the varsity boys team played nice and hard the entire game as they got out to a good lead then let them back in and I thought we were in trouble but then we started a streak and got back to a good lead until the end of the game. I thought we worked hard and ran hard during the game and I mean everyone on the floor led by Matt Anderson as he hustled the entire game. Braxton and the new player Aidan Jutting moved the ball around the Julius Moore ran the Huskies crazy by always being right there where ever they threw the ball and then couldn't get rid of him. Keep going boys and play hard no matter what the score is.

The wrestling teams in town have a couple things coming up on Saturday and first will be the girls team, as they have a dual tournament in Canton called the Battle for the Paddle starting at 10 am and last thing I heard was they had 17 teams coming to participate. Get up to the high school and cheer on the girls who has finished 2nd in a couple tournaments over the last couple of weeks in Iowa so they would sure appreciate some support and lets get that Paddle! The boys head down to the Elk Point Jefferson on Saturday with action starting at 10am for the Huskie invite so if you need to get out of town head down there for some more great Canton wrestling. Plenty to choose from on the mats but find something to cheer for.

Well the NFL is down to their last month as all teams have 4 games left and I know mine is sitting good and with 4 more wins we will be home for the playoffs and that is always good. We have tough games like the Ravens on Christmas day so everyone should sit back and wish the Niners good luck!!! At this point of the year, you can't overlook any team no matter how bad their record is so yes I am still nervous. So good luck to your teams as they finish up their season and I mean as long as we don't play them good luck otherwise see you next year.

We went to a wedding on Sunday and it was Levi and Summer Wiersma and at the wedding I was talking to Brad Peterson about junior football when Levi played for me way back in 2011 and 2012. The first year we didn't end with a great record but lost to a few of the top teams in the league that season but then the next year when he was a 6th grader we added the team that didn't lose for a couple of years with a good group of football players but I also added Levi back with Scott Peterson at quarterback and Levi fullback and we went 11-0 and won the championship. I remember that season cause we had very good skilled position players with Verley, Scheidt, March and a bunch more and Scott had to hand off to Levi for some pounding up the middle. The best part of the team was our defense and Levi was the middle linebacker and he hit so hard that a lot of people didn't want to run the ball up the gut and I didn't blame them. I met Levi in the 2 seasons he played for me and to be invited to his wedding 11 years later means a lot to me and I appreciate getting to talk to him at the reception and talk a little football. This is one of the best reasons I have done this coaching 5th and 6th graders for 28 years and its not the food at a wedding but the chance to talk to the kid who worked very hard for me and our team and see what a great person he has turned into. Congratulations to Levi and Summer.

"Night of the Father's Love" Cantata

Canton Community Cantata was held last weekend at the Canton Lutheran Church in connection with the live nativity. A story was told of with singing, flute, piano and the organ along with a narrator guiding us through the journey. First was The Coming of the Lord followed by Waiting, Angels Are Making Their Rounds, Night of the Father's Love, The Shepherds' Song, Seeking the King, Fall on Your Knees, Christ is Born, Nowell!

The live nativity was reenacted many times Saturday and Sunday night. Community members along with live animals brought you through the journey of Jesus being born. The Canton Lutheran Church Youth held their fundraiser of soup and raffle.

There's Power in Teaching Educators Rising empowering South Dakota's future by tackling the teacher shortage

By Virginia Olson

HHS Senior Jacob Hanson has made a career decision. He is going to be an elementary teacher. His plan – to attend USD next fall and work toward an education degree.

"I made that decision to become a teacher my sophomore year," he said. "I also joined Educators Rising at HHS. It's nice to have direction and motivation to help me feel more confident about what is ahead."

Hanson is one of 43 high school students involved in Educators Rising at Harrisburg High School. Ten South Middle School students are also members.

Inspiring future teachers

Inspiring the next generation of South Dakota teachers is the goal of Educators Rising, a career and technical education student organization (CTSO) that provides young people with hands-on teaching experience. It also piques their interest in the profession and helps them learn and develop the skills to be a successful educator.

Travis Lape, who is the state director of Educators Rising, started the program five years ago to bring students together and help them connect to the world of education. In fact, Harrisburg was one of the original six chapters in 2018 when the organization took shape. Today, 52 chapters and over 300 members are part of Educators Rising South Dakota, and that number continues to grow yearly.

Lape's concern when he took the director's role five years ago was 'what are we going to do about teacher recruitment?'

It's what the Educators Rising organization is in place to do – provide guidance and support for current high school students and, in doing so, help to ensure there will be future educators in place for future classrooms.

"Recognizing the importance of cultivating the teaching profession in South Dakota, we understand that fostering interest and providing leadership opportunities for middle and high school students is crucial," said Lape. "A national statistic shows that almost 60% of teachers live and work within 20 miles of where they grew up. Educators Rising South Dakota is a non-profit looking to help our schools here in South Dakota grow their own teachers so that they return home to teach and inspire the next generation of South Dakotans."

Still, the problem lies in finding those would-be teachers.

The SF Argus Leader reported in Nov. that 175 teacher vacancies remained unfilled this past school year. Teachers retiring or simply leaving the profession, large class sizes and student behavior have been common reasons for the current shortage. Yet the biggest drawback has been the highly publicized low compensation. According to the National Education Association (NEA) South Dakota ranks 49th in teacher salaries. With an ongoing teacher shortage problem especially in small towns and in certain subject areas like CTE and special education, South Dakota schools are open to ideas on how to fill those crucial staffing positions.

Area colleges motivate

Educators Rising along with area universities have been coming together to help motivate and educate those students thinking about becoming an educator.

Lape believes one of the best ways to get kids fired up about becoming a teacher is through high energy leadership conferences.

"When you think about some of our small schools, they might only have 1 to 3 students interested in the teaching profession. We need those students to be excited about the teaching profession. It is why we host learning expos and leadership development conferences. We want to bring students together that have similar interests and passions to celebrate the profession," said Lape. "There is so much negativity at their fingertips around education; that is why we host these events to bring forward positive stories."

Potential teaching candidates interested in taking up a position in front of a classroom did have the opportunity this fall to attend numerous learning expos on numerous South Dakota college campuses.

A learning expo is a way to build a foundation of professional relationships by bringing a large group of like-minded students together to further explore career opportunities said Lape.

"These expos have been held in collaboration with both private and public universities throughout the fall. Their aim to offer a conference-like experience tailored for high school and middle school students eager to delve into the realm of education."

One of the largest expos was held in November at Dakota Wesleyan University. The Fall Learning Expo in Madison gave 220 students a platform to network interacting with faculty and gaining insight into the classroom experience.

"Expos, like the one at DWU play a vital role in inspiring the next generation of educators as well as nurture their passion for education," said Lape.

"DWU has been a steadfast partner in this education journey since the Educators Rising South Dakota inception, having hosted the inaugural conference five years ago. This year the event attracted over 220 students. Our members had the opportunity to participate in dynamic breakout sessions led by faculty and current DWU students.

"The atmosphere during these sessions was characterized by high energy and enjoyment, providing members with a unique and engaging perspective."

Offering incentives

There is no way around it, the teacher shortage is real!

The Learning Expo can also be a way to recruit. Close to 200 students attended a special event Nov. 30 hosted by Augustana University rotating students through sessions where they learned teaching skills, classroom management strategies and what the Augustana education program has to offer.

To make the event even sweeter, Augustana also offered a $2000 a year scholarship to all of the students at the students to get some hands-on learning.

"At Harrisburg, Mrs. Kern teaches a course that allows the students to go out and work in classrooms teaching lessons on selected topics. This course provides a 15-hour practicum inside our schools. Some schools set up an adopt-a-classroom system where the members team up and adopt a classroom and then commit to support that classroom each month."

Lape believes actual classroom experience is worthwhile.

"We know that by getting our members into classrooms, it provides an opportunity for them to work with kids and see the impact they can make. We also have a student interested in the teaching profession in Harrisburg who is doing a 100-hour internship," said Lape.

Providing times in the schools allows students to see what it takes to be a teacher Lape added.

Motivation is key to Educators Rising. It is why the organization brings in inspiring guest speakers and sets up mentorship programs.

"Educators Rising makes it a great opportunity for schools to bring in retired educators, teachers, administrators, counselors, food service directors and special education directors and talk about their roles in education," said Lape. "To run a school there are so many roles other than the classroom teacher."

Mentorships have been an incredible way to pair student members with teachers said Lape.

"These mentors can serve as a great resource to students as they explore the world of teaching. Mentors can share valuable information. It also gives them a connection back to their school."

Educators Rising making an impact

Hanson, who has been part of Educators Rising since his sophomore year, is grateful for what he has learned through his experiences, the various college visits he has taken part in and being a member of the group itself.

"I have been to BHSU, USD, Augie, SDSU and DWU. It is amazing to know how many people are interested in the same career I am."

The Augustana visit had the greatest impact on Hanson.

"When we went to Augie, the Education Dept told us about how the school of Education works – that it revolves around the Circle of Courage. The four sides of the Circle of Courage represent mastery, generosity, independence and belonging. During the visit, we attended four different workshops presented by professors and students. My favorite one was the mastery as we got to answer trivia questions and build a card tower. It was not like any other experience I have had as I learned so much on how to incorporate different aspects of teaching into the classroom."

Hanson also has been doing hands-on learning at Endeavor Elementary.

"Through my Exploration of Teaching class with Mrs. Kern, which is required in Educators Rising, I get to teach in a event if they decided to become education majors at the university.

Encouraging high schoolers as future educators

Other area Expos were held at the SDSU campus Sept 18 and USD Sept 25. Each campus made the experience unique with special information and activities.

USD not only had a student panel of current USD School of Education students who offered firsthand accounts of their educational journeys but also provided practical information about its USD School of Education programs and admissions process, ensuring that students left with a clear understanding of expectations, the student teaching experience, what is required to obtain a degree and necessary certification. Members got a tour of the campus and also took part in a college fair at Muenster University Center.

SDS, which has 150 teacher college graduates a year, hosted 110 students from 20 schools. Students attended breakout sessions, asked questions for current faculty and educators to answer, created new connections, toured SDSU and got to taste of what SDSU had to offer. They also were served SDSU's famous creation cookies 'n cream ice cream.

Educators Rising will hold its state conference Feb. 28 on the campus of Northern State University. In all, eight expos will be offered this school year. The final expo will be scheduled in late January at USF with the National Conference in Washington, DC June 28 – July 1.

Welcoming a

New Librarian Cheyenne Chontos hired as director of Harrisburg Community Library

By Virginia Olson

The City of Harrisburg has hired Cheyenne Chontos as the new director of the Harrisburg Community Library.

"What drew me to Harrisburg is that it is such a tight-knit community, the type that you can really only find in a small town," said Chontos. "I know Harrisburg is growing and changing, but people here also have a real sense of identity and pride."

Chontos has worked as a professional librarian since 2021. She graduated from Augustana College in 2015 with a degree in Elementary Education then went on to Emporia State University in 2021 to get her Master of Library Science. She previously worked at Sage Project Consultants and then the South Dakota State Library. She is from Sioux Falls.

Chontos says she looks to the community to help guide the library.

"I believe community input and communication are really important for libraries to grow and to meet the needs of community members. I want the community to feel like it has a say in the direction of its library. I also hope over time we can expand services offering more programs for all age groups."

She also is looking for ways to get more people into the library.

"We want the library to be that community hub and place of inclusion offering programming for all age groups," she added.

Eve Langerock who is part of the Harrisburg Community Library Board, said Chontos is the right person for the job.

"This is an incredible opportunity to grow our Harrisburg Community Library," she said. "We are excited for new programs, ideas and experiences Cheyenne brings to the position. Libraries are a place for all ages and people, and we know Cheyenne will grow our library to meet the needs of the community."

Chontos looks forward to her new role with great anticipation.

"The Harrisburg Library is such a warm, inviting place, and I am honored that I get to be part of it."

Chontos is married to Jeff Thormodsgard who is an English teacher at Roosevelt High School.

"In my free time I enjoy reading (of course!), exploring the local state parks and spending time with friends and family. Both my husband and I also love spoiling our cat, Purrman Catpote."

Chontos started her new role as director in November.

Snow, and plenty of itmemories of December, 2022

Lincoln County has been spoiled with mild November and December weather.

That wasn't the case last year!

A winter snowstorm brought 12 inches of widespread snow to Harrisburg, Canton and the surrounding area December 8 and 9 in 2022. The county received nearly 20 inches of snow in December and students had three snow days that month. Not surprising, Great Bear was open.

Let it snow, let it snow, let it snow! It was snowing December 8, 2022, and school was called off. Photo provided by Miles Vanderweide.

South Dakota School Superintendents and Associated School Boards

Applaud Governor and Legislature

The Executive Board of the South Dakota School Superintendents Association and the Associated School Boards of South Dakota issues the following statement in response to Governor Noem's Budget Address and her leadership in response to the financial needs of our public schools and prioritizing our future through our kids and grandkids:

We are genuinely grateful to the Honorable Governor Kristi Noem for proposing a budget that includes legislation acknowledging national inflation. An increase in state aid does the following:

- allocates a 4% increase in funding to schools.

- funds school districts above the statutory limitation providing a greater chance to compete with neighboring states for our best and brightest teacher candidates.

- provides money for the general fund. The general fund is utilized for salaries and benefits (insurance, taxes, and retirement) for most employees (salaried and hourly) as well as operational expenses for our school buildings. Administrators and elected board members take this responsibility seriously.

want the public to know that we are grateful for the opportunity to participate in the legislative process, including the invitations to address various legislative committees during the session.

We want the public and our elected officials to know we appreciate their support for public school children. We encourage patrons across our 148 school districts to connect with their local school board and superintendent to understand the unique situations, stories, and achievements of their public school district.

Respectfully submitted on behalf of the SDSSA Executive Board and the Associated School Boards of South Dakota,

Joel Jorgenson, Madison Central, SDSSA President

Becky Guffin, Aberdeen, SDSSA Vice-President

Summer Schultz, Brookings, SDSSA Past President

Orion Thompson, Agar Blunt Onida, SDSSA Treasurer

Jennifer Lowery, Tea Area, SDSSA Secretary

Louann Krogman, ASBSD President

Douglas R. Wermedal, ASBSD Executive Director

Rob Monson, SASD Executive Director

Legislative Perspective on the Governor's Budget

Representative Kevin D. Jensen, District 16

As promised, Governor Noem presented a relatively conservative budget. This came as no real surprise because we all knew the Federal COVID money would be phasing out. We also knew the change of the sales tax rate from 4.5% to 4.2%, would be a reduction of around $100 million dollars in tax revenues. I think it is important to say that the House majority wanted the tax cut permanent, but the Senate would not budge from a temporary reduction and the result was a sunset clause compromise. I wholeheartedly agree with the Governor on making it permanent. In many ways it is easier to prepare a budget when you do not have to factor in all the strings and restrictions attached to federal dollars. It is interesting to note that while the South Dakota economy appears to be strong, the Census Bureau reports a reduction of median income from 2021 and 2022 of 9.1%. I am interested to learn what caused that reduction or was it merely a change in how it is calculated?

As the governor stated, over the past 3 years we have appropriated significant increases in the funding of education, service providers and state employees, but the pay for teachers did not seem to reflect those increases. Having served 15 years on a school board, many times the support staff, secretaries, maintenance, kitchen staff and others did not see increases in their pay commensurate with the teachers' pay. I have visited with school board members and administrators and some have made an effort in recent years to use some of the increased funding to bring those pay scales in line with competing industries. It's not easy to keep staff at $12.50 an hour when fast food businesses are paying $15-18. Education is a team effort; the entire staff contributes to the learning environment of a student. The proposed 4% is not out of line, but like every other budget proposal we will not have actual revenue projections until near the end of session.

I do have concerns about the final and cost for the new prison although I fully agree with the need for one. The current proposed location is a soybean field with no infrastructure and nothing nearby; we essentially have to provide the infrastructure for a 'gated and guarded' town of 2,000 people in a very short period of time. I still believe there are more suitable locations. I also have concerns with ongoing operating expenses with the need to provide many services in-house that have been available because of the convenience of being located in a large community. Who will actually provide fire rescue and ambulance services? If we keep the Jamison Annex operational, will we be duplicating services? There are still a lot of questions.

Having worked in the computer field for most of my career I am excited about the Quantum Science and Information investment. But with my experience I question what we are actually getting for $6 million dollars. I owned a tech consulting company working with IBM equipment in the 90s and 6 million does not buy a lot of high-end equipment anymore, especially since we recently spent over 10 times that just on new software for the state.

We knew that we would need to add to the Medicaid funding since in the early stages there would be a roll out period where people would slowly get into the system. I do believe there needs to be some form of accountability so we do not have able bodied younger adults on the Medicaid system who are not working while others are working hard to afford health care. The Medicaid system was originally intended for children and pregnant mothers. Medicaid is not just federal money; the state needs to cover over 40 cents of every Medicaid dollar. I am hoping we can find a solution.

Parting thought in response to the Governor's remark, "Last year, the legislature spent tens of millions of dollars that wasn't in my budget recommendation." Knowing that the budget surplus was not going back to the people, I introduced HB1127. Volunteer firefighters rely heavily on local fundraisers to pay for their equipment. My youngest son was a volunteer in Wyoming and told me how their personal protective equipment (PPE) has an expiration date of 10 years. Most departments are using at least some outdated safety clothing. Because of COVID, most departments held no fundraisers for 2 years. These fundraisers are one of their main ways to pay for 'bunker gear' (PPE). Unless you live in the towns of Sioux Falls, Aberdeen, Huron, Rapid City or Watertown you are protected 100% by volunteer departments (around 99% of the land mass of the state). This bill had to be approved by the House Appropriations Committee (9-0) then through the House floor ((69-0), then to Senate Appropriations Committee (5-3) and on to the Senate (33-2), and finally a conference committee and back to both houses to concur.

HB1127 appropriated $5 million grant dollars for purchasing only PPE. These funds came from the previous budget surplus. The Department of Public Safety put out Grant Applications. 255 volunteer departments around the state applied for a total of $15.7 million dollars. Remember this was to replace outdated PPE or buy new PPE for new volunteers. Most departments received 1/3 of what they requested. The NEED is there. Unless you live in one of the five largest towns - you are protected by volunteers. I will be working with the Governor's office to ask if we can give a higher priority to protecting our firefighters in the future.

As I do every year, I will be providing weekly updates on the legislative session, wins and losses. Have a very Merry Christmas and a safe and happy new year. You can reach me at kevinj605@gmail.com.
