Walk of Ages at Canton Good Samaritan Home

Residents and family couldn't have asked for a better day to take part in the Walk of Ages. Canton Good Samaritan Society along with volunteers from Canton Lutheran Church walked around the beautiful path that past fundraisers helped to build.

This year the money will go towards turning the back porch area into a four season room for residents to enjoy all year long. The total cost of the project is $115,000.

The fundraiser was just about canceled due to sick residents and staff. Instead staff were quick on their feet to come up with an alternative option to have it in the parking lot area to allow more social distancing. "COVID has become between us and too many events! We hope to keep everyone safe but also have a great day that residents look forward to. My heart cannot take another canceled event," said Michelle Short.

Over $4,500 was raised from the event with Pam McLaren winning the smoker; Stacey Bomgaars winning Blackstone grill and Scott Larson won the quilt.

Residents, staff, volunteers and family walked around the Canton Good Samaritan Society building and going past the porch that will be turned into a four season room. This back area has been transformed over the years from donations to make it an enjoyable garden to enjoy.

CLC's Resilience Following Flood Journey

By: Kala Hazelhoff

In the aftermath of the June flood of this year, Canton Lutheran Church is steadily overcoming big hurdles, with a long road of recovery ahead of them. Along with a good portion of the town, the church had considerable damage during the weekend of unrelenting rain. Thursday of that weekend, they ended the week of Vacation Bible School with Grand Valley Lutheran Church when the rain started.

The basement of the church was severely damaged, which is where the main fellowship area, large kitchen and mechanical room are located. Kenny Short was instrumental in helping with his industrial sized pump and Johnson Feed Inc. donated the transportation of ServPro, as they had problems getting the trailer to Canton. Starting on the Monday after the flood weekend, the professional team members were able to start the work of cleaning out the drywall, kitchen items, and turning on industrial fans and dehumidifiers.

The church averted the crisis, however, by still being able to be in the building. Thanks to CLC volunteers, electrical work, framing, and water remediation started in the lower level to make it safer. The leaders wanted to make sure that people could engage in a safe way to help complete these tasks. They held a prayer service in the affected area on July 23rd.

"We hope to continue to be a beacon of God's hope for people. It gives us pause to ask, where do we believe God to be leading our church in this next chapter of ministry, as God resurrects this faith community into something renewed?" -Pastor Jon Spichal Larson

CLC is grateful to other churches, such as Redeemer Free Lutheran, which have hosted funeral lunches while the basement and kitchen are in the process of being repaired. ELCAL disaster relief and the SD Synod Bishop Rev. Constanze Hagmaier, along with her staff, were quick to reach out to CLC right away to get the word out for prayers and support. The CLC leaders have remained steadfast and resilient. There is much gratitude to be given to the Executive Council and Building Committee and staff, who have served faithfully during the unexpected flooding event.

Safer Communities

By: Gov. Kristi Noem

September 6, 2024

We recently celebrated the graduation of 20 new law enforcement officers in South Dakota. This graduation was unique because it included the first ever tribal-focused law enforcement training put on by a state, rather than by the federal government. Eight tribal law enforcement officers immediately began protecting and serving their communities.

I was particularly touched by their families who were in attendance. As I looked at the pride beaming from their families, I realized why these new officers accepted this calling: they want their families to grow up in safe and prosperous communities. And they are willing to be the boots on the ground to ensure that happens.

That graduation was a very honorable day. Those men and women stepped up to serve the public – and the public will look to them for what is right and what is wrong. On their toughest days, their oath as a law enforcement officer will be what gets them through. They will show compassion and empathy to people on their hardest days, and they will keep a steady hand when hard times are in front of us.

We respect law enforcement because they are the ones who protect our freedoms here at home. Earlier this year, I released an ad for Freedom Works Here to recruit law enforcement officers to South Dakota. We've already made South Dakota the freest state in America – and with more law enforcement officers, we'll make it the safest, too.

Too many other states and cities have a different story to tell. In New York City, more than 2,500 officers resigned last year – 43% more than five years prior – meanwhile, murders are up 23% from five years ago. And 63% of Americans view crime as an "extremely" or "very" serious problem, the highest percentage ever recorded.

Calls to "defund the police" have turned into actual budget cuts in far too many communities. And the Biden-Harris Administration has even made this a reality for tribal communities here in South Dakota, as they have consistently underfunded tribal law enforcement.

But we must not be afraid because of threats to public safety. At that law enforcement graduation, I quoted Paul's words in 2 Timothy to those new officers: "God has not given us a spirit of fear – but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind."

These officers have tremendous power in their new roles. And they will use that power with love. And they will make decisions with the sound mind that their training provides them to serve the people of their communities with excellence. I am so proud to have them protecting and serving our communities.

After the graduation, I met with tribal leaders from six of our state's tribes to discuss next steps to improve public safety in tribal communities. We talked about how to increase the amount of tribal law enforcement officers coming through our state academy. We also discussed the benefits of Mutual Aid Agreements like we just signed with the Crow Creek Sioux Tribe. Our conversations are turning into real solutions.

I will continue to push for meaningful action from Washington, D.C. – both from Congress and from the Biden-Harris Administration. They need to do their part to keep our tribal communities safe, including closing the wide-open Southern Border. Until those common-sense actions are taken, South Dakota will continue to do our part. And we will celebrate landmark days like this law enforcement graduation.

SouthtownCommentary

By Pastor Jerry Miller

Trust the Creator

Cenex Harvest States just built a new grain facility outside of Worthing. It was fun watching the structure rise up from the ground as they poured concrete around the clock to make a massive tower. As we watched it grow, I could not help but think how a Medieval king would have loved to have had such a structure for his castle.

I then began to imagine what would happen if all our history and technology were lost and thousands of years from now, people were trying to figure out how this structure had been built and what it had been used for.

We have history to tell us what the Colosseum in Rome was used for, but other structures like Stonehenge and the pyramids remain shrouded in mystery. Still, no one assumes that these structures just appeared without some sort of planning.

Plants, animals, and humans are far more complex than a pyramid or a grain elevator. Knowing that, it is hard to take anyone seriously who would suggest that they came about without any intelligent design. Any honest person realizes that life needed a designer. The problem is that people do not want to be accountable to that designer.

Romans 1:18-20 puts the problem of man's rejection of God into a blunt perspective:

For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who suppress the truth in unrighteousness, because that which is known about God is evident within them; for God made it evident to them. For since the creation of the world His invisible attributes, His eternal power and divine nature, have been clearly seen, being understood through what has been made, so that they are without excuse.

With all the evidence God has given us, there is no excuse to reject him. Not only has he given us the evidence of creation, he has also given us a conscience.

In that they show the work of the Law written in their hearts, their conscience bearing witness, and their thoughts alternately accusing or else defending them, on the day when, according to my gospel, God will judge the secrets of men through Christ Jesus. (Romans 2:15-16 NASB)

If you are honest, you can see the evidence of God's existence simply by looking at his creation. God's existence is one thing, but his authority is another. He did not just make you, he also gave you a conscience. Even if you have not figured out all of God's expectations upon your life, you still know that there is a difference between right and wrong. That niggling within you that tells you something is wrong, is also telling you that someone other than you has the right to decide what is right and what is wrong. That someone is the creator of the universe.

The good news is that although the creator will hold you accountable for your sins, he loved you so much that he came to earth and died for your sins. Jesus Christ is the creator who not only died on the cross, but who also rose from the dead to pay for your sins. That is good news, but that good news is only personal for you if you believe in Jesus as your Lord and authority. If you just believe he exists, but are not willing to submit to him, you will be rejecting not just his authority but his payment on the cross for your sins.

The good news of his love and payment is the gospel. Romans 1:16 says, "For I am not ashamed of the gospel, for it is the power of God for salvation to everyone who believes, to the Jew first and also to the Greek." No matter who you are, the good news is available to you and that good news has the power to save you from the wrath of God. If you trust him, instead of facing his wrath, you will get his love and eternal life with him. "For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish, but have eternal life." (John 3:16 NASB)

"Penny Wars" during the start of school. Students brought money to school to raise funds for playground equipment. The money the students brought in will be combined with the money PATCHES has raised.

PATCHES will purchase a boat and tire swings for the playground. The class that raised the most money was Sarah Ulrikson's 5th grade class.

They were able to name the boat since they won and the boat will be called "Mighty Hawk."

"Thank you to all parents and students for your generosity! The fundraising goal was met and the equipment is being manufactured. It should arrive before winter at the school," said Lawrence Principal Gabe Devitt.

Choosing a memorial for yourself or a loved one is a choice that will last hundreds of years. The importance of that choice is not lost on the new owner of Paulson Monuments, Laura Woods. Woods, who recently completed her work on her "Remember Me, Never Forgotten" book, has found that her path coincides with her faith, taking her on trails never imagined.

After years of putting together the remembrance book, she completed that project earlier this year and a chance encounter while her and her husband's, Jim, roofing call added another item to her list. "We decided we needed to quit the business," said Paul and Eileen Paulson, former owners of Paulson Monuments.

"We had prayed about it. We had hoped He would show us the path. Four years ago, after the property had sold (where the business was located, currently Security Savings Bank), we prayed someone with passion and a heart would come forward, and Laura was the person we had been praying for."

Enrollment figures for the Canton School System have been released for the new school term that started recently. The enrollment in the school system is twelve less this year than last year. Total enrollment for this school term is 1154. Class enrollment as of August 30 at Canton High School included 101 Seniors, 98 Juniors, 101 Sophomores; 101 Freshmen; 93 Eighth graders; and 106 Seventh graders.

Four Canton ladies met at the Canton Senior Center with Rita Oyre and Kenneth Ulrich from the Division of Social Welfare and Virginia Edwards, outreach worker for the Areawide Project on Aging to establish a Homemakers Program for Lincoln County residents.

Thieves are still busy in the area, as three more "hits" were made this past week, according to Lincoln County Sheriff Ken Albers. Burglars broke into the Hiawatha Country Club sometime during the night of August 31. The Newton Hills grocery was burglarized on September 2. Albers also received a report from Lewis Cue of the theft of a large quantity of tools and some other items from a farm about one and one-half mile west of Canton.

Arthur Ramse of rural canton was the recipient of a distinguished service award at the South Dakota State Fair held in Huron last week.

The award was presented to Ramse by the South Dakota Chester White Breeders association of South Dakota for his work, guidance and dedication to the swine industry.

Our city school opened last Monday with a very good attendance, 411 being enrolled.

Our readers will be glad of an opportunity to witness the grand exhibitions which are seen at buffalo Bill's Wild West Show. The route of the show in South Dakota next week will be as follows: Yankton, September 13; Mitchell, September 14; Sioux Falls, September 15.

The concert of the Baptist choir at the opera house last Friday night was a tremendous success. Every seat was occupied and many were turned away who were unable to obtain seats, and the concert was as fine as the audience was large and appreciative.

The ladies of the Baptist church gave a lawn social on the court house lawn on Tuesday and gathered in shekels to the value of some twenty four dollars American money, and the band discoursed sweet music the whole evening.

The business men of our city have kindly consented to close their place of business from one o'clock until four o'clock Friday and Saturday afternoons, so that everybody can go to the fair.

Smiles and tears, mingled with laughter, is in store for those who visit the opera house on next Thursday evening when the justly celebrated rural comedy drama, "Si Perkins."

HISTORY REVISITED

By Gaynor Johnson

South Dakota's journey to statehood was very long, very interesting and quite complex to say the least. School lands, the railroads, prohibition, Democrats vs. Republicans and a host of other issues played a role in what Everett W. Sterling called The Bumpy Road to Statehood. I will be using excerpts from the book Dakota Panorama that was published back in 1961. Since we have a lot to cover I will keep this short. If I don't Teresa will have to cut some of the Canton Library News and I don't want Tracey mad at me.

So happy reading as the first day of autumn grows closer and closer as does our harvest season. And keep on the sunny side, always on the sunny side, as temperatures dip downward.

Excerpts from Chapter 18 The Bumpy Road to Statehood by Everett W. Sterling from Dakota Panorama published by the Dakota Centennial Commission in 1961

That Dakota Territory would be divided into northern and southern halves was generally accepted. In 1871 the Territorial legislature unanimously memorialized Congress to reduce the size of the Territory by dividing it along the 46th parallel. Other memorials for division of the Territory were sent to Congress in 1872, 1874, 1877 and 1879.

The organization which Beadle, Ward, and others sponsored, known as the Citizens' Constitutional Association, made slow progress at first. In June of 1882 they called a statehood convention at Canton, located south of Sioux Falls on the Big Sioux River. At that time a bill was before Congress calling for the admission of southern Dakota to the Union and their purpose was, according to Ward, "to shape by friendly counselling together, the form of the State government under which we are to live and our children are to be born."

Only ten counties were represented at Canton. The meeting was held in the face of opposition from party leaders and was criticized for the large number of ministers in attendance and the fact that WCTU held a convention at Canton at the same time. The reform flavor of the convention is apparent in the work of the Committee on Resolutions, headed by Dr. Ward. They called for the protection against monopolies, the avoidance of extravagant expenditures, and control of the liquor traffic. The convention is most important for the formation of the Dakota Citizens' League, which continued to work for statehood and reform.

The statehood bill presented to the 47th Congress, following the Canton convention, did not pass.

The 1886 defeat sealed the fate of the statehood moment for another two years. Not until the political complexion of Congress changed could favorable action be expected. This change was provided by the election of 1888, which ensured Republican control of both houses of Congress and of the executive branch after March 4, 1889. In the face of this prospect, Congressional leaders decided to act on the statehood question. Ten days before the end of Cleveland's administration a bill was passed calling for the division of the Territory and the administration of two states.

Under the enabling act the citizens of southern Dakota were permitted to write a new constitution or adopt the one approved following the Sioux Falls convention. Early in May the voters chose to accept the 1885 constitution. When delegates to the constitutional convention assembled at Sioux Falls on July 4, there was little business to do other than to divide the assets and debts of the Territory and arrange for transition from territory to state. On the question of state names, it was decided that the northern counties, proud of the world-wide reputation of "Dakota No. 1 Hard Wheat," would share in the use of the name Dakota. It had some times been proposed that the northern state be named Pembina. The constitution was overwhelmingly adopted at an election held on October 1. A.C. Mellette was once again elected to serve as the state's first governor while Pierre was chosen as the temporary capital of the state. Prohibition carried by a slender margin.

The newly elected state legislature assembled at Pierre two weeks later and elected Moody and Pettigrew to serve as the first United States Senators from South Dakota. Edgerton, who was thus by-passed, was shortly named judge of the Federal Court. Until South Dakota was officially a state, the legislature had no other business, but awaited the President's proclamation.

The full machinery of state government was ready to go when President Harrison signed the documents admitting North and South Dakota to the Union on November 2, 1889. He carefully shuffled the two proclamations in such a way that none could know which was signed first. Properly speaking, the two states are together the 39th and 40th states to enter the Union. By virtue of the fact that "N" precedes "S" in the alphabet, North Dakota has pre-empted the lower number in popular usage.

Mental Health Memo

A division of the South Dakota Department of Social Services

National Addiction Professionals Day

About the Author: Jeniah Ugofsky is an intern for the Department of Social Services, Division of Behavioral Health's Workforce Development and Promotions team. Jeniah earned a Bachelor of Science degree in psychology and a minor in addiction studies and is currently attending the University of South Dakota to earn her master's in social work. Her career goal is to become a Licensed Certified Social Worker with a Private Independent Practice License and help people in the State of South Dakota with behavioral health disorders.

National Recovery Month in September, and specifically National Addiction Professionals Day on September 20th, highlights the seriousness of addiction within South Dakota and the critical role addiction professionals play in our communities. These dedicated individuals specialize in addiction prevention, intervention, treatment, recovery support, and education; their work impacts the lives of individuals and families all across South Dakota. Even if you haven't personally been affected by addiction, it's likely that someone in your community—whether a neighbor, coworker, or acquaintance—is struggling. The work of addiction professionals is incredibly selfless and demanding.

This special recognition given to addiction professionals acknowledges their hard work and commitment. Despite the significant impact they have, addiction professionals often operate behind the scenes, and with only very rare public commendations. National Addiction Professionals Day is also a chance to raise awareness about the importance of their work and to encourage support for addiction prevention and treatment efforts in our communities. By recognizing National Recovery Month and National Addiction Professionals Day, we can contribute to reducing stigma, promoting understanding, and supporting those who are dedicated to helping others on their journey to recovery.

Here are some ways you might express your gratitude and support for addiction professionals:

Personal Thanks: Reach out directly to addiction professionals you know or encounter and let them know how much you appreciate their work. A simple thank-you note or message can go a long way in showing your support.

Social Media Advocacy: Use platforms like social media to promote awareness about addiction issues and the role of addiction professionals. Use hashtags like #AddictionProfessionalsDay to join the conversation and amplify the message.

Wear Purple: During September, wear purple to show your solidarity with addiction recovery. It's a visible way to support the cause and raise awareness about the addiction recovery movement.

For their part, addiction professionals might:

Share Your Story: Reflect on your journey into the addiction field and why you find it meaningful. Sharing personal experiences can inspire others and highlight the importance of your work.

Engage with Students: Take the opportunity to speak with students who are interested in the addiction field. Answer their questions, share your insights, and encourage them to pursue careers in addiction prevention and treatment.

Community Support: Share information about addiction resources and services available in your community. This could include local support groups, counseling services, or helplines. By spreading awareness, you help others access the support they may need.

It would be fair to say that addiction professionals seek to impact persons facing mental health and substance use challenges. Their efforts create an environment where compassion,

Democrats Can't outrun Their Record on the Border

By Sen. John Thune

Four years ago, President Biden and Vice President Harris campaigned against the border security policies of then-President Trump. Soon after taking office, they set about dismantling these effective policies despite their team being warned that doing so could result in a surge of illegal immigration. That surge came, and it was Vice President Harris who was put in charge of handling the administration's response. But it wasn't much of a response.

Now President Biden and Vice President Harris are trying to claim they have been strong on border security all along, but the data tells a much different story. This administration has overseen three record-breaking years of illegal immigration at the southern border. Ten million illegal immigrants have crossed the border illegally during this administration. Included in that number are suspected terrorists, gang members, criminals, and 1.9 million known "gotaways" who have entered the country without being apprehended, which the chief of Border Patrol has called a "national security threat."

Additionally, the Biden-Harris administration's lax implementation of our asylum system is undoubtedly a "pull factor" for many migrants. In many cases, individuals who show up at the border claiming asylum are simply released into the country with court dates as far as a decade into the future. As we learned in June, this administration also gave de facto amnesty to hundreds of thousands of illegal immigrants whose cases were closed without resolution.

Then there are the government-funded flights to cities around the country, guaranteed shelter in a number of cities, and, in California, illegal immigrants can get taxpayer-funded health care.

The effects of this crisis are not limited to the southern border alone. In fact, every state has virtually become a border state in one way or another. Here in South Dakota, law enforcement can trace illegal drugs in our communities to the southern border. Police in New York City recently revealed that illegal immigrants make up 75 percent of arrests in midtown Manhattan as the city deals with an influx of illegal immigrants. And many of us have seen the tragic stories of Americans killed by illegal immigrants who should have never been in our country in the first place.

A crisis has raged at the southern border for much of the Biden-Harris administration. On more than one occasion, the Biden-Harris administration has turned its back on border security, and their Democrat allies in Congress have voted against meaningful border security policies time and again. Try as the Democrats might to change their tune in an election year, the American people can see what's happening with their own eyes, and they know that this administration's disastrous record on the border is to blame.

BIG Update

Shenzhen DJI Innovation Technology Co., Ltd. (DJI) is a Chinese Military company, linked to the Chinese Communist Party (CCP), that makes thousands of drones, many of which are used in the United States. These drones operate on Chinese military software, firmware, and hardware, which could pose a significant risk to American agriculture and safety.

I'm concerned about the amount of information that China has access to in American agriculture and our food supply chain. I've been raising awareness on China's purchases of American ag land, and I've advocated for increased oversight and prohibition of these purchases. With one decision, China could leverage its access and detrimentally impact our food supply. These DJI drones give them a unique opportunity to do so. I joined twelve other members in requesting a briefing from the United States Department of Agriculture and the Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency about the risk they pose to our food supply.

China is our biggest foreign adversary, and America cannot continue to allow unprecedented access to our data.

BIG Idea

I've been a champion on the Select Committee on China for rebuilding America's manufacturing base. With that in mind, I visited with Jeff of Dakota Adventure Supply (DAS) and stopped by one of their manufacturing facilities to see where the magic happens. We Stitch Stuff has a wide range of work, from manufacturing products for DAS, Binder Lifts for paramedics, and repairing equipment for Heiman Fire Equipment.

It's always encouraging to see a local business making high quality products for other local businesses. These businesses have a tremendous impact on our local economy and make fantastic products unique to South Dakota.

BIG News

My team and I closely monitored the Black Hills fire throughout the week. I'm grateful for the firefighters and first responders who have been working to keep people safe and contain the fire. Even though it is mostly contained now, check here for up-to-date safety information if you're in the area: <https://www.pennco.org/publicsafetyhub>.

I've been an advocate for proper forest management, and a fire like this is a reminder that a healthy forest is a managed forest. Managing the forest decreases the risk and slows the growth of wildfires, protecting our families and preserving the habitat for generations to come.

What can insurance do for you?

It's probably not on your calendar, but September is Life Insurance Awareness Month. And it's indeed a pretty good idea to be aware of what life insurance can do for you.

Life insurance can help you in two main ways. First, life insurance policies offer a death benefit that can assist your family if you're no longer around. And second, some types of life insurance offer the chance to build cash value, which can work for you during your lifetime.

Let's look at the death benefit first. If something were to happen to you, your life insurance proceeds could help your family meet at least three major needs:

Paying off debts – The biggest expense many families face is their monthly mortgage. If you weren't around, could your family continue paying the mortgage? Or would they have to move? With a sufficient life insurance death benefit, they could remain in their home, meeting the monthly mortgage payments, or perhaps pay off the loan entirely (although this might not be in their best financial interest).

Paying for education – If you have young children, you may already be saving for their college education — because you know college is expensive. Without your income, would college, or some other form of post-secondary education or training, still be realistic? Again, the proceeds from an insurance policy could make the difference.

This strategy is right for you depends on a few different factors, perhaps the most important of which is your ability and willingness to consistently invest the money you would have otherwise placed in a cash value policy.

In any case, should you choose cash value insurance, you generally have three ways to get at the money: withdrawals, loans or surrender of the policy. You'll want to weigh all the factors involved — including taxes and the effect on the policy's death benefit — when deciding on how to access the cash value.

Life Insurance Awareness Month ends on Sept. 30. But your need for life insurance, and the potential benefits it provides, can last a lifetime.

OFF The Road With Jerry

This is the annual Fall set-up of an old 1800's Western Town. Fake store fronts were set up in an old west setting with a real bar and several general stores. Pictured here is Jim Queren of Canton and one of the organizers of this, Steve Swanson of rural north Canton. This temporary town was set up along the Sioux River about 6 miles north of the Big Flying J's Truck stop in Sioux Falls off Highway 38.

Here is Kevin Jensen at the right and his display of antique guns, knives and swords at his tent set up. At the left is an old west undertaker to haul victims of "shootings." A lot of people came for this 2 to 3 day event, always ending on a Sunday.

I got to help with moving the big cannons, which fired off several times. It would take a whole or more of black powder to shoot each time. The crowd was kept back for safety when these big cannons were fired.

This is a horse drawn cowboy chuck wagon with Steve Swanson right and some of these wagons actually produced a lot of good beef stew and even apple pie in the black cast iron cookware.

5th Annual Tales From The Grave

Historical Figures from Canton's Past

Forest Hill Cemetery • Canton, SD • September 12, 2024 2:00 p.m.

A.G. Noid*October 9th 1855 - March 3rd 1933Portrayed by Chris Noid*

Andrew was born in Sweden and he came to Canton in 1880 and went to work for T.W. Hood, a druggist. He was known as "Doc" and went on to establish his own drug store which was in the Noid family until 1967. Doc was very active in the social life of Canton and managed the Opera House for years. He was an avid hunter, fisherman and trap shooter. His wife Julia's ice cream was a big hit at the Drug Store and people still talk about the Soda Fountain in the store. Doc and Julia's house on the corner of 9th and Main is still in the Noid family and is now occupied by his great grandson, Chris and his wife Colleen.

William "Rattlesnake Bill" Vining MitchellMay 14th 1849- October 21st 1938Portrayed by Ron Ingebrigtsen*

Rattlesnake was a teller of tall tales and everything he said had to be taken with a grain or box of salt!! He says he was born in Canada to an Indian father and a French mother and he left home at the age of 14 to seek his fortune. He was an Indian fighter, scout, cowboy and rattlesnake charmer. Bill claimed to be able to hypnotize rattlers with his eyes and he got his nickname from the ability to pick up rattlesnakes because of this uncanny power. He lived as a hermit in the Newton Hills and occasionally showed in Canton for his yearly bath and shave. He is buried at Forest Hill Cemetery in an unmarked grave in Lot 1 Block 9.

Palma Anderson*July 20th 1881 - May 1st 1938Portrayed by Angie Larson*

Palma was born on July 20th, 1881 in Beloit, Iowa to John and Ingeborg Anderson. In 1890 she began taking piano lessons and show great promise at the early age of nine. Palma attended "Ferry Hall" a boarding school for teenage girls in Chicago and was praised for her skill in playing classical music on the piano. She later went to Berlin to study with some of the leading piano teachers there and was later the head of the piano department at Trinity College in Waxahachie, Texas. Her parents purchased a Mason & Hamlin grand piano for her around 1900 and it is the piano still used at Canton Lutheran Church. She was the church organist/pianist there from 1918 until the year of her death.

The story of children buried in block 1by Bill Peterson*

There are over 60 children buried in block one at Forest Hill Cemetery. Causes of death are listed as: stillborn, premature birth, diphtheria, typhoid fever, measles, whooping cough, scarlet fever, Spanish influenza, lockjaw, consumption, drowned, struck by lightning and crushed by a pile of railroad ties. Many of these children lie in unmarked graves. Thanks to Paul Sogn for singing a hymn for the children and to him and his wife Kim of the "Garden Shed" for the flowers to decorate the graves of these children of Canton.

Elwin "Doc" Tuttle*June 14th 1904 - May 5th 1999Portrayed by Terry Gerber*

Elwin was known as "Doc" and was born on June 14, 1904 in Canton to Charles and Luella (Kehm) Tuttle. Doc's grandfather came to Canton in 1880 from Grant County, Wisconsin and farmed 160 acres northwest of town. Doc's father, Charles was a veterinarian in Canton for many years and also owned a livery stable. In 1929 Doc and W.W. Lewis opened a café and named it the "Lewdoc" and they operated the café for 31 years.

Doc was the 1st president of the "Hiawatha Golf Club" and was instrumental in establishing the golf course.

Hearing Loss Among Farmers

Why should farmers and agricultural workers be concerned about hearing loss?

- Hearing loss from exposure to noise is common among farmers and agricultural workers
- Hearing loss from noise is permanent and irreversible
- Hearing loss from noise can be prevented

Hazardous levels of noise are produced by many kinds of agricultural equipment, including:

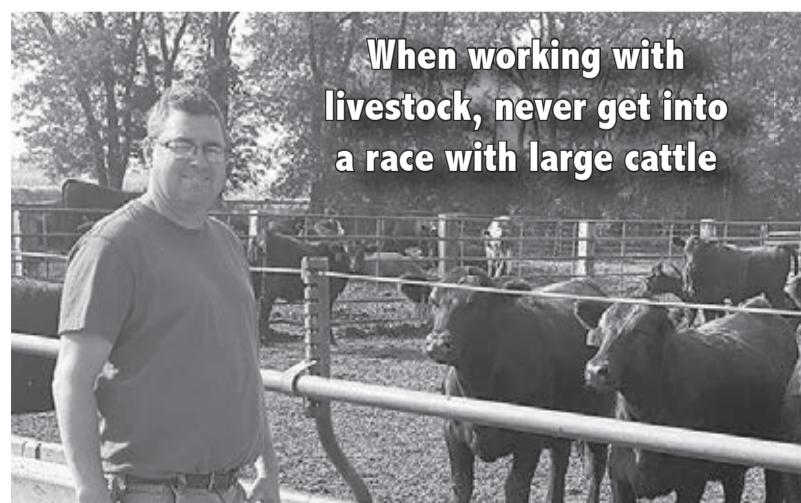

- Grain dryers
- Tractors
- Combines
- Livestock
- Chainsaws
- Firearms

Farm Safety: Making it a daily habit

Originally written by Tracey Erickson, former SDSU Extension Dairy Field Specialist.

We know that agriculture ranks as one of the most dangerous occupations causing an estimated 167 lost-work-time injuries on a daily basis, of which 5% result in permanent impairment, according to the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH). In addition, approximately 20 farm workers per 100,000 die annually, with the leading cause of these deaths being tractor overturns (NIOSH, 2012).

Unfortunately, within agriculture we often become complacent in our daily safety habits and focus more on task accomplishment, instead of task accomplishment done safely. Fall brings one of the busiest times of the year in agriculture with activities such as harvest, manure application, silage chopping, residue baling and working of livestock/cattle as they are brought in from summer pastures.

Take time to train all employees on how to perform the task safely, assigned according to your established guidelines. Make sure to address incorrect performance immediately by showing and telling them how to perform a job correctly.

Farm Safety Tips

Below is a reminder of some of the basic farm safety tips as you go about accomplishing these tasks. This needs to be a habit performed on a daily basis, and not something we do occasionally.

Equipment Maintenance

- Follow operating, maintenance and safety instructions in your operator's manual. Review them periodically.
- Stop the power before unclogging or fixing a power-driven machine.
- Turn off the engine before refueling. Do NOT smoke around hazardous chemicals.

- Keep all shielding in place and considering purchasing a roll-over protection system (ROPS) if the tractor is not already equipped with a ROPS or cab. Make certain hydraulic lines are properly connected and leak free.
- Make sure there is a working fire extinguisher and first aid kit on your operating equipment and that all employees know where they are and how to access or operate.

Equipment Operation

- Be personally fit and ready for a safe day at the wheel.
- Make sure all equipment operators are well trained and competent. Do NOT allow extra riders on equipment.
- Match ground speed to operating conditions. Watch where you are going. Avoid obstacles, ditches and steep slopes.
- When on the road, use your flashing lights. Make sure the slow-moving vehicle emblem is clean and visible. Obey all traffic rules. This includes NOT texting or using your personal smart phone for emailing or using apps, while driving equipment down roads.
- Watch for overhead power lines.

- Take the time to transport large equipment down public roads in an appropriate manner.
- When parking, set brakes, shift into "park" or "neutral".

Facilities

- Make sure you have appropriate livestock handling facilities, which will be safe for both you and your livestock.
- Before emptying manure pits make sure it has been well ventilated and that you use a respirator to avoid exposure to toxic gases, wear a harness and have one person outside the pit who is able to summon help if necessary. Additional resources can be found on the Manure Pit Safety page by Penn State Extension.

- Follow safety guidelines for safe grain bin entry so that personnel entrapment in grain does not occur. Wear a safety harness at all times and work in pairs with one person staying outside the bin being able to summon help if needed. Additional resources can be found on the Hazards of Flowing Grain page by Penn State Extension.

Employees

- Dress appropriately for weather and working conditions, including personal protective gear such as a bump cap, gloves, safety shoes, ear plugs, respirators, and safety glasses.
- Take occasional breaks to reduce fatigue.
- Understand animal behavior and how an animal flight zone and balance point can be used to handle livestock in a safe and calm manner.
- Attend a livestock handling workshop as you and your employees improve your animal handling skill set.
- Lastly, and most importantly, watch out for the children on the farm yard. Make sure they understand NOT to play around equipment or facilities. In addition, we should also make an extra effort to know where they are at on the farm at ALL times. I realize there are many more safety tips that we could have gone over. However, these tips can be applied to a large portion of the farm equipment and situations that will be occurring this fall and winter and hopefully, they will remind you to think "safety" and make it a habit!

Resources to Stay Safe on Specialty Crop Farms

Kristine Lang

Assistant Professor & SDSU Extension Consumer Horticulture Specialist

Extreme Heat: Projections and Protection (Physical and Mental)

Extreme weather-related events have a greater impact on marginalized, rural, and populations that work outdoors. These communities have limited social and physical infrastructure, challenging their baseline resilience. Thus, these populations' members need the tools and resources to increase their adaptive capacity and resilience during extreme events. The University of Minnesota Extension program developed a resource specifically for farmers regarding extreme heat and poor air quality.

The ability to find and understand weather forecasts is important to being prepared for extended periods outdoors and strenuous outdoor activity, which includes farm, yard and garden work. The NOAA National Weather Service issues heat advisories, watches and warnings with the protection of human health in mind. They use Heat Index, a combination of air temperature and humidity, to inform their forecasts of extreme heat events that could have significant or life-threatening impacts. Wet Bulb Globe Temperature (WBGT) can also be utilized in the field with a measurement device.

WBGT includes air temperature (exposed in sunlight, not in shade), humidity, wind and solar radiation to better mimic human biophysical response to extreme heat and humid environments. Other websites and resources are in development to better forecast and warn for extreme heat events, including the experimental NOAA Heat Risk website and the Mesonet at SDState.

To connect with one of our on-staff experts and learn more about the services that SDSU Extension can provide, please visit the SDSU Extension Food Safety page.

Pesticides: Properly Protecting Produce

Pesticide use and regulation had troubling beginnings in the United States. Following cries for environmental justice and the recognition of the negative consequences of unregulated pesticide usage, the US government stepped in to place controls on pesticides. The current model gives federal authority to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to establish national standards, while states are given the opportunity to generate their own standards for certification and training that meet or exceed national standards.

Whenever pesticides are used, safety is the top priority, including safety for the applicator, others that may interact with treated areas (humans, pets, wild animals, etc.), and the environment. Organic pesticides are still pesticides and can have severe negative consequences in humans. The label is the law. As the enforceable point of communication between applicator and regulator, it is necessary to read and be familiar with labels when buying, before applying, when cleaning up, and when storing pesticides. As always, be safe out there when you make applications, and don't hesitate to contact SDSU Extension for more information related to pesticide safety and South Dakota training requirements. You can also find additional information and resources on our safety and training page.

Finally, weather-related events can have serious mental health consequences, especially for those who depend on the environment and predictable weather patterns for their livelihood. If you or someone you know is experiencing mental health symptoms, such as anxiety, depression, forgetfulness, avoiding friends or social activities, and substance abuse, talk with your support system, contact your local health professionals, or find a therapist via telehealth. SDSU Extension provides a variety of mental health resources for farmers.

On October 6th Pastor Jon is doing a "Bike to Worship" event. He plans on biking to church from his home in Sioux Falls to raise money. He is encouraging members to participate in the last mile with him. Anytime Fitness is also hosting their 5K again this year on October 26th at 10am, with the funds that are raised being given to the CLC flood relief. They have also received a generous grant from the "ELCA Lutheran Disaster Relief" which will be extremely helpful towards their flood relief effort. Multiple ELCA congregations in South Dakota are also giving to CLC for flood relief.

"As I've been thinking more about it, along with the biking to church fundraiser, there are so many images of journey in the Bible. The Exodus story, Jesus being tempted in the wilderness, St. Paul on the road to Damascus, and many more. This recovery, for CLC and for many, is a long journey... one that will affect us for the rest of our lives. And yet, a message in all of those stories from scripture and in our lived experience is God's presence with us along the way. It's not easy, and none of those stories were easy journeys, but there is meaning and growth and hope. God, through Christ, promises a way forward. This is true for Canton Lutheran Church, a congregation that has existed and done ministry for over 156 years."

After a successful debut in 2023 for Sioux Falls and Canton audiences, the "Parables and Proverbs" musical returns to the Orpheum Theater. Eliana Kilmer, a Canton resident, is back as a first century Jewish girl named Tamar, who shares the teachings of Jesus with a group of modern-day children. Rylee Adam joins the cast this year as Servant Wisdom Two. Eliana and Rylee are also known as last year's Queen Elsa and Princess Anna respectively, in the Frozen Jr. musical production by the Canton Middle School.

City Holds 2025 Budget Hearing, Cell Phones, Kids Prepares for City Administrator

By Rollie Steck

The Canton City Commission met in regular session on Tuesday, September 3 at 7 p.m. at the Depot. All Commissioners were present at the time of roll call.

With no Visitors to be Heard and no Old Business, the first item under New Business was the First Reading of the 2025 Appropriation (Budget) Ordinance. Finance Officer Kyle Cwach presented the Appropriation for 2025 and noted that the budget was now balanced to $150. Cwach mentioned that he worked with Department Heads to trim some costs and prioritize projects. He said the budget is extremely tight for 2025 due to the extra cost of adding a City Administrator for 2025. Motion to hold the First Reading by Commissioner Paul Garbers. No Second and Vote is required for a First Reading.

Reporters Note: Under South Dakota Codified Law, the City of Canton is under the Commissioner form of Government. This form of Government allows the City discretion to hire a City Administrator to help with the operations of the City and does not require a vote by the Citizens to employ a City Administrator. The Commissioners still remain the department heads and the Mayor acts as the person in charge. This differs from the City Manager form of Government in which an elected Commission hires a City Manager to act as the administration/executive for the City. To change to a City Manager form of Government, the Citizens would have to petition and bring to public vote. The other major difference is that a City Manager can hire and fire City Employees. A City Administrator does not have those capabilities.

Next under New Business was the Planning & Zoning Commission Appointment. The Ordinance to update the Planning & Zoning Commission from five members to seven members including a City Commissioner or the Mayor became effective July 3, 2024 and was advertised in the July 11 and July 25 editions of the Sioux Valley News for the position. It was also posted on the City website/app and Facebook on July 23. Three phone calls were received at City Hall inquiring about the opening with one of them who called, submitting an email of written interest: Brian Riniker. Chairman Jerry Chaon called and interviewed Riniker and given his experience, Chaon believes he would be a good fit. The Planning & Zoning Commission met on August 27 and recommends the appointment of Riniker to the Planning & Zoning Commission for a new 3-year term. Motion to appoint Riniker to the Planning & Zoning commissioning by Garbers. Seconded by Commissioner Jackie Pigors. Unanimous approval.

The City Commissioner Appointment for Planning & Zoning Commission was next on the agenda. The Ordinance to update the Planning & Zoning Commission from five members to seven members including a City Commissioner or the Mayor became effective July 3, 2024. A City Commissioner or the Mayor needs to be appointed to the Planning & Zoning Commission. Mayor Sandra Lundstrom recommended Garbers for the appointment. Motion to appoint Garbers to the Planning & Zoning Commission by Commissioner Tyler Larson. Seconded by Pigors. Unanimous approval.

Next on the agenda was the Resolution for Applicant Agent. As part of the Flood Resiliency and Economic Recovery Support Program, the City of Canton needs to appoint an applicant agent to sign the reports. Motion to approve Mayor Lundstrom to sign the reports by Pigors. Seconded by Garbers. Unanimous approval.

The Match Commitment Letter was next under New Business. As part of the Flood Resiliency and Economic Recovery Support Program, the City of Canton needs to approve the Match Commitment Letter. Motion to approve by Pigors. Seconded by Larson. Unanimous approval.

Next on the agenda was the Statement of Interest. The City received two statements of interest from Engineering Firms to assist with Flood Resiliency and Economic Recovery Planning. Harley Ferguson from SECOG (SouthEastern Council of Government) was present to answer any questions. City Engineer Myron Adam took to the podium and noted that the City did do a comprehensive drainage study for the entire City in 2010.

However, this study would need to be updated due to the age of the report. After discussion regarding the two firms for future studies, Garbers wanted more information before making any decision to move forward. Motion to table by Garbers. Seconded by Pigors. Unanimous approval.

The Helm Change Order #4 was next on the agenda. Burbach Aquatics INC., has submitted Change Order #4 for the Canton Community Swimming Pool in the amount of $654.34. This was for a combination of adds and deducts for gutter outlet reroute, valve deduct, chemical tank deduct, test kit and time extension as requested by the contractor. Motion to approve by Pigors. Seconded by Garbers. Unanimous approval.

Next on the agenda was the Beaver Creek Pay Application #6. JSA has submitted a Pay Application for the Beaver Creek Trunk Sewer Project Sewer project to First Rate Excavating in the amount of $505,511.43. Motion to approve by Garbers. Seconded by Larson. Unanimous approval.

The final item under New Business was a Change to the Organization Chart. It is being recommended to update the organization chart to reflect a change in who reports to the Utility Foreman position. Motion to approve by Garbers. Seconded by Larson. Unanimous approval.

During Commissioner Dialogue, Pigors mentioned that the City will be having a Forum/Town Hall on the City Administrator at the High School Commons on Thursday, September 12 at 6:30 p.m. Mayor Lundstrom echoed Pigors. Garbers noted that there was a meeting with BNSF Railroad, Lincoln County and Canton School District about the flooding and trees in the Railroad Right of Way.

With no further discussion, motion to adjourn at 7:50 p.m. by Larson. Seconded by Pigors. Unanimous approval.

Next on the agenda was a Raffle Request from St Dominic Catholic Church. Amy Bulitenbos has submitted a raffle request for St. Dominic Catholic Church. On Sunday, October 13, they will be hosting St. Dominic Feast Day Parish Picnic and will be holding a raffle, bingo, pull tabs and dice games. Cards will be sold for $1/card. Motion to approve by Garbers. Seconded by Pigors. Unanimous approval.

The Beaver Creek Sanitary Sewer

Repair was next on the agenda. During the June flooding, a section of gravity flow sanitary sewer was destroyed. When the City learned of the damaged line, they contacted City Engineer Adams to setup a temporary bypass pumping. A permeant repair is being engineered. Normal bidding procedures would put the completion of this project into Spring 2025. Due to the bypass pumping being unprotected from the elements, Adams thinks the permeant fix should be done this construction season to be protected from the elements. Motion to authorize JSA Engineering to move forward with completing the project this construction season to solicit three contracts to provide quotes for the repair by Garbers. Seconded by York. Unanimous approval.

Next under New Business was the First Reading of Ordinance to Repeal & Re-enact Chapter 30: Mayor & City Commissioners in order to change the language to include a City Administrator. Motion to give the First Reading by Pigors.

Next on the agenda was the First Reading of Ordinance to Repeal & Re-enact Chapter 31: Appointed Officers & Employees to change the language to include a City Administrator. Motion to give the First Reading by Garbers.

Vacant Farm Land was next on the agenda. The City has land around the lagoons that is in need of weed control and used for hay. The City is interested in accepting proposals for the work to be completed. Motion to invite proposals for the tillage and haying of the City Farm Ground with proposal due by September 13 at 3 p.m. by Garbers. Seconded by Larson. Unanimous approval.

Next under New Business was Utilities Foreman William Winter - 90 Day Review. Winter has received a positive performance evaluation and is being recommended to increase his wage $29.67/hr (Grade 12, Step 4). Motion to approve by York. Seconded by Larson. Unanimous approval.

The final item under New Business was a Change to the Organization Chart. It is being recommended to update the organization chart to reflect a change in who reports to the Utility Foreman position. Motion to approve by Garbers. Seconded by Larson. Unanimous approval.

During Commissioner Dialogue, Pigors mentioned that the City will be having a Forum/Town Hall on the City Administrator at the High School Commons on Thursday, September 12 at 6:30 p.m. Mayor Lundstrom echoed Pigors. Garbers noted that there was a meeting with BNSF Railroad, Lincoln County and Canton School District about the flooding and trees in the Railroad Right of Way.

With no further discussion, motion to adjourn at 7:50 p.m. by Larson. Seconded by Pigors. Unanimous approval.

and Learning

-What do we know, what are we learning, and what impact do cell phones have on our kids??

Most of the research has been done since 2017, the Screenager project first surveyed parents in 2017 asking the parents if they allowed their middle school kids to carry their cell phone all day at school. According to the survey, "55% of middle school parents allowed kids to carry their cell phones all day despite the fact that more than 80% of parents did not want their kids using their cell phones at school." And in research since, the Screenager project has discovered that having phones away during school has a positive impact on students' learning, mental health and social lives.

The findings include:

Students learn better without phones-Test scores increased for all students and student who were already struggling in school struggled more due to the distraction of their phone. This increased the gap between the low and high achieving students even more. In another study students were asked about the frequency and duration of their use of portable electronic devices and how it affected their learning. Higher rates of internet use were found to be linked to lower test grades.†

The emotional and social impact of phones were noted- Teens who spend more time on social media are also more likely to report symptoms of depression. When students engage in in-person time with friends, peers and mentors, their mood increases. Both middle schools and high schools can be sites of drama and conflict, but the presence of social media amplifies the tensions between students even more. When a student is receiving rude messages on Snapchat or made aware of a group chat, they were left out of, it can become very hard to focus on anything else, especially school.

Students who have social anxiety might use their device as a crutch throughout the day, relying on it to avoid uncomfortable interactions with peers. Without having to face the discomfort, these students never have a chance to grow or conquer their social anxiety.

Nationally school are implementing "Away for the Day" which is a program that gives schools tools and ideas for creating a policy that has students put their phone away during the school day. School administrators have reported - "I can say without a doubt that the vast majority of student conflicts we deal with on a day-to-day basis originate from social media. Students are constantly trying to check their phones for the latest social media posts, any of which cause stress and anxiety during the school day." "Since [Away for the Day], we've continued to have our share of cell phone/social media drama, but it is very much reduced and often not during the confines of the school day."

As we start the new school year take time as a family to talk about the emotional and social impact of cell phones and social media. Teens need support and boundaries to help them make good decisions about social media use. Hope everyone has a great school year. If you have questions, please feel free to contact me at the Canton High School- Tuesdays and Fridays or my office in Sioux Falls 605-331-524. Darcy Jensen MS, LAC,CPS

Sportstalk

By Rich Beitzel

Well, it has been a couple weeks since a new sportstalk so here we go I will see if I remember how to do this. We have 2 football games under our wings now and so far, so good as we are 2-0 and going to get better. We struggled the first part of the game but found a way to come away with the victories so that is great. Our senior back field is great with Cain Wallner and Teague Granum as they are just plain hard to bring down to the grass and they are fun to watch as they run so hard that little football players that are at our games hopefully are seeing how hard you suppose to run each time you have the ball in your hands.

We have some parts of our game we need to work on and I know they are every practice but as an old offensive lineman I know you have to drive block on every play unless you pass it but if you are drive blocking you shouldn't have to pass but I know we have big strong linemen so let's get those holes opened up and the defense moved back 10 yards. The games are going to get tougher and I think we are going to be ready so keep working hard and we will be yelling for you because everyone loves offensive linemen.

I drove to a girls' volleyball game in Madison last week and as I dropped off the team I got a parking spot and went in and our c team was playing and it was fun to watch them hit the ball back and they knew the game as did most of the teams out there and it was a lot of volleyball but good volleyball is fun to watch and Atlanta has us playing good so we should have good teams for a few years to come.

The varsity girls won 3 games in a row and sometimes we look out of position but I can't argue with results and they got them with the sweep. SO get out and check out the girls volleyball teams when you get a chance.

Its big boys football season now with the pros starting this weekend and college going for a couple weeks and my teams hopefully will have great seasons and one of them is had a big win Saturday as the Cornhuskers beat Colorado and played hard so that is great to see and I don't think they are going undefeated but positive results are fun to see and it will get better and better and that's all a guy can ask for. The 49ers will play Monday night for their first game and I am writing this the day before but I am looking forward to seeing them now that everyone is paid a huge amount of money like on every team but it's a long season but I am sure we will win the Superbowl this season of course I feel that way every year but this year I really mean it.

Went to the Spencer fair Saturday with Teresa and Galen and Deb and saw Kansas play their great music and while we were there it was Iowa vs Iowa State and there were a lot of shirts from both sides and you could hear the fans during the game as spots at the fair grounds and I thought that was funny cause it came down to the very end but I didn't see any fights when Iowa State won by like a point or by a foot. Don't worry I still got a corndog and a sno cone so it was a fun day and hope to do it again soon.

National POW/MIA Recognition Day

National Prisoner of War and Missing In Action Re3ognition day is Friday, September 20. A program and ceremony will be held at the Veterans Memorial Park, 1020 W Bailey Street, Sioux Falls starting at 6:30 p.m. In case of bad weather, it will be held at the VFW/American Legion Armory, 1700 W. Russell Street, Sioux Falls,

You Are Not Forgotten -- that's the phrase behind the POW/MIA remembrance movement that honors America's prisoners of war, those who are still missing in action and their families.

Many of our service members suffered as prisoners of war during several decades of varying conflicts. While some of them made it home, tens of thousands more never did.

POW/MIA Recognition Day is commemorated on the third Friday of every September, a date that's not associated with any particular war. In 1979, Congress and the president passed resolutions making it official after the families of the more than 2,500 Vietnam War POW/MIAs pushed for full accountability.

During the first POW/MIA Recognition Day commemoration, a ceremony was held at the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C., while the 1st Tactical Squadron from Langley Air Force Base in Virginia flew the missing man formation. Most ceremonies since then have been held at the Pentagon, and many smaller observances have cropped up across the nation and around the world on military installations.

The point of POW/MIA Recognition Day is to ensure that American remembers to stand behind those who serve and to make sure we do everything we can to account for those who have never returned.

In order to comprehend the importance of this movement, all you need to do is look at the sheer number of Americans who have been listed as POW/MIAs.

- 130,201 World War II service members were imprisoned; 14,072 died.

- 7,140 Korean War service members were imprisoned; 2,701 of them died.

- 725 Vietnam War service members were imprisoned; 64 of them died.

- 37 service members were imprisoned during conflicts since 1991, including both Gulf wars; none is still in captivity

According to the Defense POW/MIA Accounting Agency, 83,114 Americans who fought in those wars are still missing, including:

- 73,515 from World War II (an approximate number due to limited or conflicting data)

- 7,841 from the Korean War
- 1,626 from Vietnam
- 126 from the Cold War
- 6 from conflicts since 1991

The DPAA said about 75% of those missing Americans are somewhere in the Asia-Pacific. More than 41,000 have been presumed lost at sea.

In South Dakota there are still 309 missing from WWII; 34 from Korean War and 7 from Vietnam.

The traditional POW/MIA flag that's well-known across America was actually created many years before the remembrance day became official.

In 1971, Mary Hoff contacted a flag company near her home to see whether a flag reminding people of POWs and the missing could be made. She was one of the many waiting to see whether her husband, Navy Lt. Cmdr. Michael Hoff, would ever return home after his plane had been shot down over Laos.

World War II pilot Newt Heisley designed the now-famous flag, which was made in black and white to represent the sorrow, anxiety and hope symbolized by the image of the gaunt man featured on it.

For every POW/MIA Recognition Day since 1982, the flag has flown just below the stars and stripes at the White House – the only other flag to ever do so. In 1998, Congress ordered it to also be displayed on Armed Forces Day, Memorial Day, Flag Day, Independence Day and Veterans Day.
